

TARIFF BATTLE
REOPENS TODAY
IN U. S. SENATE

Farmers Demand Higher Rates on Many Products As Democrats Fire on New Schedule.

SLIDING SCALE
OBJECT OF ATTACK

Mid-Western Republicans To Join Democrats in Effort To Restrict Revision to Farms.

Washington, September 8.—(United Press.)—The senate will return to the tariff battle this week in a big way, turning its attention to phases of farm reform problems, the tariff, farm forest, naval disarmament, and prohibition.

Tomorrow the tariff fight will be in earnest on the senate floor. The following day the naval committee will consider charges that big shipbuilding companies have hired a lobbyist to obstruct disarmament plans. Later in the week, farm board members are slated to go on the senatorial grill. Pending in the senate for action this week is the resolution of Senator Jones, republican, Washington, providing a joint congressional commission to study proposed answer of prohibition enforcement agencies from the treasury to the justice department.

To Fight Flexibility.

On the eve tonight of the tariff fight, a dozen leading agricultural organizations made public a joint petition addressed to every senator protesting that the senate bill falls far short of necessary protection for the farmer, and demanding increases all along the line. They also demand that the measure be passed at the special session, though all indications point to the contrary.

Democrats and western republicans all open their attack tomorrow on the flexible tariff provisions which give a president power to raise or lower tariff rates, and making the senate a mere rubber stamp for the executive. The tariff fight Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, issued a statement tonight declaring that such delegation of power is unconstitutional.

McKellar will add another amendment for repeal of the flexible provisions to others which have been tacked already in the hands of the senate. Under this amendment, the tariff commission would be an agency of congress, and the president would be required to appoint and remove members, opponents of a high protective tariff.

Simmons Leads Fight.

"In my judgment," McKellar said, "the constitutional power to raise revenue is entirely in the hands of congress, and the congress has not a constitutional power to delegate it to a tariff board and to the president, and I have the supreme confidence that the congress will uphold the flexible clauses in the present law."

The democratic tariff leader, Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, will present a resolution tomorrow giving the new tariff bill, containing the flexible provisions, to the republican committee. The committee has announced they are ready to take this arrangement.

Repeal of the flexible provisions, in effect since 1922, is expected after some time. This would take away from a president the tariff-making powers which the house enlarged in its bill, consideration first of administrative provisions was determined last week by democrats, who decided to defeat a joint attempt with western republicans to limit the bill to agriculture.

Borah Is Opposed.

The agricultural organizations never approved nor disapproved the senator's move to restrict revision to agriculture, not mentioning it in their lengthy petition.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, who will be a leader in the fight on the administration tariff bill, also inaugurated the investigation into the activities of William R. Shearer, self-styled "naval expert," who claimed in recent New York suit that big shipbuilding companies had employed him to promote naval shipbuilding.

Borah will sit with the naval committee Tuesday when it decides whether it will turn it over to the senate committee. The committee will have before it President Hoover's denunciation of Shearer's activities, which the chief executive has asked the justice department to investigate.

Shearer and officials of the companies—the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company, and American Brown Boveri Company—will be called. Company officials have named Shearer as employed to open naval disarmament plans, either general or here, but they have not

No Clue Which Might Lead To Apprehension of Murderer Found by Men Probing Case.

A night and a day of investigation Sunday failed to bring a tangible clue to the murderer of Frank E. Marlin, 60-year-old railroad engineer, whose bullet-riddled body was found Saturday afternoon in an abandoned reservoir 500 yards up a densely wooded hill from the west end of Parsons street.

The police Sunday questioned scores of negroes living in the neighborhood who are known to have used the abandoned reservoir as a gambling den, but none of them admitted he had been Saturday or had seen Marlin in the district.

Likewise, detectives working on the case were unable to trace a single step in Marlin's movements from his home at 1152 Greenwich avenue to the scene of his murder, which police are convinced took place on the spot where the body was found at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, nearly eight hours after the engineer had left his home presumably to go to a grocery for tobacco.

Against Stone Wall.

"We are against a stone wall," Detective John W. Lowe, in charge of the investigation, said Sunday night. "We have found no one who admits having been in the reservoir basin Saturday."

Lowe, with other officers assigned to the case, spent all day Sunday in the district surrounding the reservoir questioning residents of the vicinity.

The detective conferred Sunday night with Coroner Paul Donohoe who ordered an inquest to be conducted at 9 o'clock this morning at the J. Austin Dillon Undertaking Company's parlors on South Pryor street, where Marlin's body is being held pending funeral arrangements.

Many Ordered to Appear.

A number of persons, including F. L. McDaniel, an employee of the Childs Coal Company, at Simpson street, and the L. & N. Beltline railroad, who found the body, have been subpoenaed for the inquest.

Arrangements for the funeral are to be completed this morning.

Marlin is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Marlin; four daughters, Mrs. George E. Jones, Mrs. J. F. Linkin, Mrs. Charles Bibb and Mrs. R. A. Johnson, of Nashville, and two sons, T. W. and E. F. Marlin, and a brother, Edward Marlin.

Will Co-operate, However, If New Association Is Formed To Complete Mountain Work.

Sam H. Venable, spokesman for the owners of Stone Mountain, said Sunday he had no objection to the proposed formation of a new group to take over the memorial program. But, Mr. Venable added, should this plan or any other plan fail to accomplish its purpose the Venable family personally will see that the memorial is completed.

Any program which will assure the completion of the mountain memorial will be given the full co-operation of the Venable family, Mr. Venable said.

Formation of a new memorial association has been suggested by President Philip H. Alston, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. This plan, Mr. Venable said, has his full approval and would get his complete co-operation if the new group could give reasonable assurance of its hopes for success.

Desires to Finish Job.

Mr. Venable, however, corrected a statement of Mr. Alston in which the chamber executive said he did not believe the Venable family would complete the memorial. Mr. Venable emphasized the fact that the completion of the memorial to General Lee and his men was the predominant effort of his life and he would leave nothing undone to see that it was accomplished, in the event that the memorial organization was unable to carry its program to ultimate completion.

He expressed confidence in his belief that he and other members of the Venable family could complete the project themselves if public groups failed.

Mr. Venable pointed out that in the past he had given full co-operation to various groups interested in the completion of the memorial and said that he would stand by any association which was formed with the purpose of completing the memorial. He cited various contracts and agreements he had entered into with the memorial association and individuals interested in completion of the project and reiterated his intention to bend every effort to aid the mountain memorial sponsors.

Venable's Statement.

When approached by representatives of The Atlanta Constitution, Mr. Venable said his predominant desire of his life has been the completion of a memorial to our Confederate fathers in Stone Mountain. I think I have shown this in original life of the mountain; in the attempt over a year ago to arrive at a working understanding with the memorial association; in the memorial signing of a contract extending the time and giving the association every chance to complete the contract.

He read a card in the press in which he indicated that association has found itself in "hopeless impasse." If, as suggested by the president of the Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta, another group can be formed for taking over the mountain with reasonable assurance that they can complete the work under the contract, I have no objection.

"I should like to say that the statement in the card of the president of the Chamber of Commerce that there is no prospect of the memorial being undertaken to finish the memorial after the end of two years is far from correct."

Should the mountain revert to us at the end of two years or at any time previous thereto, it is now and will then be our intention to do everything possible to complete the memorial and I am confident that it can be done.

"The spirit of the southern people is not dead. Whatever may be the history of this endeavor I am convinced that a memorial to Lee and his men will be carved in Stone Mountain. This has been, still is and will continue to be the absorbing desire and effort of my life."

"Surely there is no one who will deny me the right to the hope that this will be done speedily and with the unanimous good will of all people."

Alston Favors New Group.

Mr. Venable's Sunday statement followed one of Saturday from Mr. Alston in which the Chamber of Commerce president declared it was his belief that no faction or group ever would finish the Stone Mountain memorial and called for the elimination of the present memorial association.

In his statement Mr. Alston blamed the inability to further carry on the work to the injunction suits of three Atlanta women which have forestalled any donations to the association by the city of Atlanta or Fulton county.

G. E. Willis, president of the memorial association, on hearing of Mr. Alston's statement said he would call a special meeting of the association for an early date, at which time the entire matter would be considered.

FINISHING OF WORK
'ABSORBING DESIRE'

Big Hall and Booths Attractively Decorated for Occasion; Unusual Entertainment Planned.

Atlanta's fourth annual Southeastern Radio-Electric exposition will swing open its doors to the public at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the auditorium-armory with every indication pointing to unqualified success.

No detail has been overlooked in making preparations for the big exposition. The booths and the great hall itself are attractively decorated, and each of the exhibits arranged with the hope of drawing the most attention.

One of the biggest features of the show will be an exhibit brought here from New York by the Radio Corporation of America showing the progress of radio. Several of Marconi's instruments which were used in flashing the first signal across the Atlantic are included in the exhibit, with other machines showing each step of improvement. The latest developments are the photo radio, radio compasses and beam transmitters, models of all these being shown. The exhibit is considered invaluable from an educational standpoint.

The entertainment features of the show are exceptional. Harry Pomeroy's orchestra will give concerts every afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30 and at night from 8 to 9 o'clock. It will also be featured in the stage revue each night at 9:15. The stage revue contains many novel features and is certain to make a big hit with the show crowds.

The success of the show from an attendance standpoint is assured. The advance ticket sale has been very large. The out-of-town attendance is expected to exceed all records, and the distributors here having made every effort possible to interest their dealers all over this section of the country to attend.

There are more exhibits on the floor this year than ever before and the merchandise displayed is far in advance of other years. Many improvements and refinements have been made in both the receivers and the cabinets that will be of interest to anyone contemplating procuring a radio.

HIT-RUN PLANE
KILLS FISHERMAN

Seaplane Strikes Boat, Killing One, Injuring One and Rises Into Air, Leaving Scene.

New York, September 8.—(AP)—Skimming the surface of Jamaica bay at high speed, a seaplane today ripped through a small motorboat, killing one man and seriously injuring another. It then rose into the air and disappeared in the mist.

The victims were fishing off the foot of Flatbush avenue when the accident occurred. The dead man was not identified.

The injured man was John Doe, 55, of Woodhaven. He was a critical condition in a hospital, suffering from broken arms and legs, concussion of the brain and numerous bruises.

Dee recovered consciousness some time after being taken to the hospital. He told police he and his companion heard the seaplane coming through a heavy mist and shouted, but the plane struck their boat, cutting it in two.

As the little craft sank, other boats sped to the rescue picking the two men out of the water.

One witness said that as the plane rose one of its pontoons appeared bent. Police sent out a general alarm for a seaplane bearing marks of collision.

TENNANT, ACCUSED IN OWNER'S DEATH, FACES TRIAL TODAY

Lawrenceville, Ga., September 8.—(AP)—Solicitor-General Clifford Pratt said today that the case of "Em" McCarty, tenant farmer, accused of shooting to death Dr. A. M. Brooks last month in a quarrel over rations, has been set for trial at the opening of the next superior court here tomorrow.

McCarty is alleged to have fatally wounded the Loganville physician and banker as he stepped from his car near McCarty's home at the latter's command to halt. Dr. Brooks died of his wounds in an Atlanta hospital on the following day.

Solicitor Pratt will be assisted by J. L. Oakes in the prosecution of the case.

MAN DIES, 2 HURT AS FAST FREIGHT HITS AUTOMOBILE

'Cemetery Crossing' Near Lithonia Again Takes Death Toll; R. L. Willis Succumbs to Injuries.

Lithonia, September 8.—(Special.)—One man was killed almost instantly, another was probably fatally injured and a third received minor hurts shortly before noon today when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a fast east-bound freight train at "Cemetery Crossing" near here.

R. L. Willis, 48, of Lithonia, died at Webb's hospital several hours after the crash from a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Credited White, 28, Lithonia, suffered critical internal injuries, and Ben Almond, 25, also of Lithonia, sustained minor lacerations and bruises about the body. They were taken to the Ara Olivia hospital.

Almond, driver of the auto, told a Constitution representative that he did not see the train and did not hear a whistle. He said, however, that his view was obstructed somewhat by a string of box cars standing near the highway.

The Georgia railway train, No. 212, was bound to Augusta from Atlanta. It was in charge of Engineer Williams and Conductor Grubbs.

SETTLERS REFUSE TO FIGHT FIRES

Blazes Spread in West as U. S. Rangers Are Forced To Impress Men Against Their Will.

St. Paul, Minn., September 8.—(AP)—Forest fires scattered over an area 600 miles square in Minnesota threatened to spread over a wider territory tonight while forestry department officials continued to impress labor into the ranks of fire-fighting crews.

There were no indications of rain tonight in Lake of the Woods country, where between 40,000 and 60,000 acres of peat and timberlands are aflame, and forest rangers feared the fires would spread to vast stretches of other timber stands if the present dry weather continues. Killing frosts have also aggravated the situation.

Nearly 50 men have been drafted for fire duty to augment the crew of nearly 250 men combating the flames along fire lines which stretch over a front of about 250 miles.

A forestry official, carrying out orders of C. M. Conzet, state forester, has been "picking up" men for fire duty.

Those who refuse to go are threatened with arrest under a state law which provides a fine up to $100. A similar penalty can be imposed against men who refuse to work when transported to the fire scene.

Mr. Conzet charges that the forest fires were caused by settlers in an effort to clear lands for agricultural purposes. Resentment against forestry officials who have sought to put a stop to this practice has seriously handicapped fire wardens in their efforts to control the flames.

Many of the settlers refused to help in extinguishing the fires, and it has been necessary to threaten them with arrest in many instances. Several arrests of settlers have been made by fire wardens on charges of setting fires.

OFFICER PLEADS ACCIDENT IN DEATH OF YOUTH OF 18

Ashland, Ala., September 8.—(AP)—Clarence Bailey, 18-year-old high school youth, was shot and killed near here this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Cecil Guthrie while the latter was attempting to place the youth under arrest on liquor charges. The officer surrendered following the shooting and is being held pending further investigation of the case.

The shooting occurred on the Ashland-Roscoe highway, about six miles from Ashland.

The deputy told Sheriff J. D. Allen that the shooting was accidental.

The officer said he had approached Bailey and a group of several other youths to place them under arrest, when they fled. He told the sheriff that he fired two shots into the air in an attempt to frighten them, and that while he was pursuing them his pistol was accidentally discharged, the last shot striking Bailey.

Vacation Pleasures Ended, 84,000 YOUNG HOPEFULS RETURN TO DESKS
'School Days' Start Today

The Atlanta school system starts its 1929-30 season with the question of leadership in its governing body still in doubt. At a meeting scheduled for Tuesday afternoon the resignation of George W. Powell, president of the board of education for two years, becomes effective and the members will be called upon to name his successor.

While almost all of the 13 members of the board have been mentioned as possible successors to Mr. Powell, only five actually have indicated their desire to fill the position. These are: Dr. McIntosh M. Burns, of the seventh ward; Mrs. Paul West, of the seventh ward; John T. Hancock, of the eighth; W. W. Gaines, of the third, and James W. Maddox, of the fifth.

Several other important matters loom among the many routine tasks before the board. Included in these is the question of the teachers' salary schedule.

The Atlanta system now has a deficit of about $100,000 which is expected to increase to about $200,000 by the end of the current school year. It has been indicated that a salary slash may be necessary to absorb this deficit. Superintendent Willis A. Sutton will recommend that the present salary schedule be maintained but that if a cut becomes imperative it be made on a percentage basis, affecting all school system employees after the increments for summer work and other remunerations have been provided.

Returning students of the Atlanta system will find a total of 389 new class rooms awaiting them, according to the announcement of Raymond R. Ritchie, assistant superintendent, in charge of business affairs. In addition to these class rooms there will be 22 new auditoriums, 11 gymnasiums and 164 utility rooms added to the facilities. These have been provided from the $5,500,000 school bond funds and should eliminate the necessity of practically all double sessions, Mr. Ritchie said.

MERRITT HEARING CITY TO PAY HONOR TO BE HEED TODAY TO JACOBS TODAY

Boykin Will Appear at Madison To Combat Content That State's Witness Was Unsworn.

Judge A. B. Park, of the Muscogee superior court circuit, will conduct a hearing at 5 o'clock this afternoon at Madison on Alvin E. Merritt's plea for a new trial on the ground that the state's chief prosecuting witness in the Atlanta trial, which resulted in Merritt's being sentenced to death, was unsworn at the time of her appearance on the witness stand.

H. A. Allen, chief of Merritt's counsel, said Sunday night he would have testimony and affidavits to support the contention of a woman spectator at the Merritt trial that the state witness was unsworn, while Solicitor General John E. Boykin said he would offer affidavits of the woman witness herself and others, including the court stenographer, which contradict the statement.

Mr. Boykin said Sunday night he would make the trip to Madison today and would be accompanied by his assistants, E. A. Stephens and J. E. Allen. It was learned Sunday that the affidavit of the woman spectator at the Merritt trial was included in the bill of exceptions filed by Merritt's counsel Tuesday for presentation to Judge Pomeroy on Friday.

G. A. R. VETERANS GATHER IN MAINE FOR ENCAMPMENT

Portland, Maine, September 8.—(AP)—The days of "way back when" lived again today as veterans of the Union army, here for the 63d national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, congregated in organization headquarters and hotel lobbies.

Some erect and hale, others leaning heavily on canes, old soldiers gathered in groups to greet comrades they had not seen in years, or some times sought in vain one whose name was stricken from the roll of living members between the last encampment and the present.

Old battles were re-fought; memories of white-haired veterans of Shiloh, Antietam, Gettysburg, Bull Run, leaped the barrier of the years between '64 and '29 and brought forth anecdotes and reminiscences of camps and campaigns.

NON-STOP FLIGHT ALL 'ROUND WORLD PLANNED FOR GRAF

London, September 8.—(AP)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Berlin says that the next flight of the Graf Zeppelin will be a non-stop trip around the world, with the necessary refueling accomplished in the air. Sponsors of the flight, the dispatch says, hope to complete the journey in 34 days.

SCENE OF HORROR UNFOLDS AS PARTY REACHES AIR LINER

Giant Trees Uprooted for Hundreds of Yards and Boulders Hurlled Many Feet by Crash.

INSTANT DEATH PROVED BY SCENE

Officials Believe Pilot Was Blinded by Windstorm; Stopped Watches Show Hour of Crash.

BY ROBERT REDWINE.
Associated Press Staff Writer.
Grant, N. M., September 8.—(AP)—The last search for the Transcontinental Air Transport plane, City of San Francisco, ended today as a party of forest rangers, an ambulance crew and newspapermen lifted a burned and crumpled fuselage from the charred bodies of the five passengers and a crew of three on the side of Mount Taylor, seven miles from its summit and 27 miles northwest of Grant.

The bodies were unrecognizable with the exception of that of the woman passenger, which had been burned less severely than others, only can be identified by dental work.

The impact of the plane, which disappeared last Tuesday and was located first yesterday from the air by Pilot George K. Rice, of a Western Air Express passenger plane, plowed a swath three hundred feet long through the heavily wooded mountainside. It had thrown the bodies forward until all were crowded toward the front of the cabin. One lay virtually under the crushed and almost destroyed center motor of the trimotor ship, the latest model passenger liner.

An area more than 300 feet square about the wreckage literally was covered with debris.

The plane, following its regular route from Albuquerque, N. M., to Los Angeles, on its last flight, had crashed into a pine tree 67 feet above the ground. The left motor struck the tree, and its propellers slashed deeply its trunk and felled the upper part. At the right, a few paces farther on, a second stub stood, a little larger in diameter, against which another motor struck. Less than a dozen feet away this motor lay, not a whole piece of metal left.

Completely Destroyed.

For approximately 100 feet farther the air liner had plunged, carrying with it destruction to trees, some of which were broken off, while others literally were uprooted. Boulders which had lain close to the roots of the trees had been tossed for a score of feet.

As the ship tore its way through the heavy growth of spruce and pine, it lost its tail and then its wings. There was not a piece of the all-metal plane, with the exception of doors and windows, left intact after the crash through the trees. The largest piece of metal left was half of the left wing, which itself had holes punched through it and the underside was sheared away.

As the ship dropped to the ground it carried with it a large piece of the left wing, which itself had holes punched through it and the underside was sheared away.

On the arm of one of the pilots there was strapped a wrist watch that had stopped at 11:01. The pilots use

THEATER EMPLOYEE, FAKING HOLD-UP, SHOT BY POLICE

Shawnee, Okla., September 8.—(AP)—Ahmad Rubbert, 32, theater employee, played the role of a robber in a fake holdup which he staged last night after a rival showhouse had attracted a crowd by artifice of a fire.

Police W. N. Jones didn't know the robbery was a real one.

Today Rubbert was in a hospital, a bullet lodged near his spine.

Jones, attracted by the pretended robber chase, fired on Rubbert. The latter dropped in his tracks. Police officers have little hope for his recovery.

Southerner Becomes Head Of Republican Committee In Capital Election Today

Claudius H. Huston, of Tennessee, Will Succeed Dr. Work, Who Retires to Private Life.

Washington, September 8.—(AP)—Unopposed by party representatives in any of the 48 states and bearing the approval of President Hoover, Claudius H. Huston, of Tennessee, tomorrow will pick up the reins voluntarily relinquished by Dr. Hubert Work as chairman of the republican national committee.

For the purpose of electing his own successor, Dr. Work has called the national committee together for its first meeting since President Hoover took office March 4. Indications were today that there would be a fairly good attendance despite the fact that the election of Huston is to be a mere formality.

No other formal business is to come before the meeting. Mrs. Alvin T. Hart, of Kentucky, vice chairman of the committee, has withdrawn her resignation at the request of Mr. Hoover.

ver to avoid possible intra-party conflict over the election of her successor, and announcement has been made that selection of a national committeeman for Georgia to succeed Ben J. Davis, negro, will not take place at this time.

The party leaders gathered here are expected, however, to delve deeply into the prospects for the coming congressional elections throughout the country and this subject probably will be the center of discussion.

President Hoover has been holding daily conferences with certain of the committeemen since the middle of last week and he gave up what would have been one of his last trips of the summer to his Virginia fishing camp in order to have more time for contacts with his lieutenants within the party. Dr. Work has been a guest at the White House since his arrival in the city and others representing various sections of the country have visited the executive mansion as they arrived.

While the selection of the new chairman and other business is to be pushed through with harmony foremost, Mr. Huston is to be confronted almost immediately by one of the problems of his office.

Mamie Williams, negro republican national committeewoman for Georgia, is here seeking to arrange a conference with the incoming leader directly after his election to lay before him a demand for participation in patronage reform within her state.

CLAUDIUS H. HUSTON.

She bases her request on the ground that, since with the election of Davis as committeeman without selection of a successor, she is "the highest republican official in the state," and adds that despite promises that her recommendations regarding patronage distribution would be considered, thus far they have been "utterly disregarded."

Since the state committee declined to re-elect Davis, patronage affairs in Georgia have been under the control of a committee. Huston, who is the first choice of national committeemen and women from 38 of the states without opposition from the other 10, was chosen under circumstances unusual in the party. Formerly the president has made his choice known and the committee has reflected his decision with its votes. In this instance, inquiry was made of the committee members as to their preference and Huston received an overwhelming endorsement. It is well known that he also is the president's choice although Mr. Hoover gave no formal endorsement.

Dr. Work will return to private life. Quitting the leadership of the party organization on his own motion, he also has declined a diplomatic appointment.

EWELL GAY FUNERAL WILL BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for Ewell Gay, 50, prominent and popular Atlanta industrial executive, who died suddenly Saturday night, will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon from the residence, 117 East Seventeenth street. The Rev. N. R. High Moor, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, will be in charge and the home services will be followed by burial rites to be held privately in West View.

Dr. Glenville Giddings, Dr. J. D. Osborne, Joel Hurt, Jr., Rucker McCarty, J. S. Slicer, C. E. Holcomb, Robert Troutman, Brooks Morgan, Frankton Ellis, Ryburn Clay, Dr. Floyd McKee, Winship Nunnally, Dugan McCleskey, Harrison Jones and Strother Fleming will serve as pallbearers.

Mr. Gay died about 7:30 o'clock Saturday night at a private hospital as the result of a heart attack suffered a few minutes before. Stricken at the home of his mother, Mrs. Edward S. Gay, Sr., at 88 Currier street, he left there and drove to the home of Dr. Giddings, his physician. He lost consciousness after attracting the doctor's attention by blowing the horn on his car and died just after Dr. Giddings had taken him to the hospital. A native of Atlanta, he was the son of the late Captain Edward S. Gay, a widely known insurance operator, and Mrs. Sallie Ewell Gay. He received his preparatory education in the Atlanta schools, graduating from Boys' High. He later attended Sewanee before enrolling at Georgia Tech, and graduated at the latter institution in 1901, winning second honors for scholarship.

He was interested in the insurance business for some time and for several years was assistant manager of the Insurance Company of North America. Later he entered the manufacturing field and several years ago became president of the A. E. Bostrom Company, machine makers. He also was manager of the Gaymont dairy.

He was popular in fraternal and social circles. The organizations in which he took an active interest included the Rotary Club, the Shrine, the Scottish Rite Masons, the Palestine lodge, F. & A. M., and other social groups. He was a member of St. Luke's church.

RETIRED PHYSICIAN GUILTY OF MURDER

Dr. Westlake Gets Life for Slaying of Mrs. Sutton.

Los Angeles, September 8.—(AP)—Dr. Frank P. Westlake, 57, retired physician, faced life imprisonment today as the result of his conviction on a charge of murder. He was accused of slaying Mrs. Laura B. Sutton, of Artesia, a suburb, and disposing of her dismembered body in the Los Angeles river last spring.

The jury's decision, returned late last night after 24 hours' deliberation, carried a recommendation of the death sentence. Formal sentence will be pronounced Tuesday.

The conviction of the doctor closed a case which baffled police for weeks. First intimation of the slaying came with the discovery of a woman's torso on the river bank after a storm turned the usually dry bed into a torrent. Police sought to identify the body by investigating disappearances of women and to locate the slayer by the clue given by an autopsy surgeon who said that whoever dismembered the body understood at least the rudiments of surgery.

The solution of the mystery followed several weeks later when a group of school boys, playing in the river bed, found a skull.

The autopsy surgeon established the fact that the skull belonged to the torso and a dentist in Los Angeles had done for Mrs. Sutton. The limbs never were found.

During the trial the state furnished evidence that Dr. Westlake had profited by the disappearance of Mrs. Sutton through forging her signature to various documents and deeds to her property.

FLORIDA FRUIT BAN LESSENER STILL MORE

Orlando, Fla., September 8.—(AP)—Rules governing the shipment of fruits and vegetables out of Florida have been lessened a bit more today.

The department of agriculture at Washington has issued administrative instructions permitting use of southern points for diversion areas of shipments of most fruits and vegetables to northern points permitted by the quarantine regulations.

The following telegram was received last night at fruit fly headquarters in Orlando from Dr. C. L. Marlatt, chief of the plant quarantine and control administration bureau, Washington:

"Administrative instructions issued by department today as follows: 'Except as to unsterilized fruit produced in eradication areas the destination limits for export shipments prescribed for Florida host fruits and vegetables in the Mediterranean fruit fly quarantine regulations will be interpreted to allow the movement under the conditions prescribed in the regulations and to areas therein designated of such articles from Florida via the usual diversion points in the states of Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee for immediate diversion at such points to any point in the destination areas authorized in the quarantine regulations, provided that the waybills of all cars engaged in diversion points in the states named shall bear a notation reading as follows: 'This car must be diverted to destinations in states north of and including Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas and Colorado.'"

REV. COLLINS TELLS OF 'YOUTH REVIVAL' BY LEAGUE UNION

Intellectual freedom of modern times has created a new problem for the church in dealing with modern youth, the Rev. L. Wilkie Collins told the congregation at Wesley Memorial church Sunday night in announcing plans of the Atlanta Epworth League Union for a citywide "youth revival" here next week.

The new problem has been answered by the rise of a new type of evangelist who understands the point of view of youth and meets its skepticism with reason, he declared. This type of evangelism, he asserted, has made for a stronger faith on the part of youth in the church than has been experienced in any other period.

Dr. Collins stated that the Rev. Norman M. Lovein, who has been obtained by the Epworth Leagues to conduct the revivals, is one of the strongest representatives of the new type of evangelist, and that he has established a record for the number of conversions among young people in southern Methodist.

The pastor preached Sunday night on the new Jewish-Arab clash in Palestine, tracing the history of Jerusalem with the aid of lantern slides.

BUS DRIVER ARRESTED FOR FATAL CRASH

Six Are Killed, 14 Injured as Bus and Truck Collide.

St. Joseph, Mich., September 8.—(United News.)—John Shanne, 25, Owasco, Mich., driver of an Indian Trail bus, was held at the county jail here on a charge of negligent homicide after a bus crash today that took the lives of six passengers and injured 14 others.

The warrant for his arrest was issued on orders of Prosecuting Attorney Wilbur M. Cunningham after a complete investigation of the crash, which occurred shortly before daylight four miles east of Benton Harbor.

The dead includes Mrs. Jose Quinones, North Branch, Mich., and her year-and-a-half-old child; Sonny Stuart, 25, colored, Chicago, and three unidentified Mexicans.

A motor truck and trailer of the Goodrich Transit Company, driven by Joe Belonger, of Kalamazoo, cut into the side of the passenger bus, which was en route from Flint to Chicago with 23 passengers and two drivers.

The collision of the vehicles, traveling in opposite directions at high speed, caused the side of the bus to be sheared off. Those riding on the left side were killed instantly.

Miss Barbara Van Couver, Kalamazoo, was saved from serious injury when Frank Moon, regular driver, pushed her to the floor. She suffered minor cuts and bruises.

The only occupants of the bus escape unhurt were the three children aged 3, 5 and 6, of Mrs. Quinone. They were unable to give their names.

All Modern Improvements

JIM AND SALLY knew what they were doing when they bought the old Jones house. It was hopelessly out of date as far as looks and modern comforts went, but it was staunchly built and had a good sized lot, and they got it for a song.

Jim's salary wasn't very big, so they didn't try to do everything at once. They began with the furnace. They read the heater advertisements. They chose just the equipment they wanted and had it installed. Then they started reading up on bathrooms and plumbing. The following year they studied woodwork advertising, and replaced the old gingerbread porch with a pretty colonial doorway. Of course the house needed painting after that and they found a dream of a color scheme suggested in an advertisement. Later came new flooring, fresh wall paper, attractive lighting fixtures, shrubbery for the lawn.

Jim and Sally have one of the prettiest homes in town. "Where did you get such wonderful ideas?" their friends ask, and Sally smiles.

"We simply knew what we wanted before we bought it," she replies. "Anyone can, who reads The Constitution advertisements."

TECH EVENING SCHOOL FACING ITS BEST YEAR

500 Business Men and Women Expected To Begin Class Work Sept. 30.

Georgia Tech's downtown evening school of commerce is facing the best year in its history, registration during the first few days indicates. Seven faculty members have been added and more classroom space secured to care for the more than 500 business men and women expected when class work begins September 30.

Creation of a full modern language department of French and Spanish, under the direction of Professor Robert Ervin, and the announcement from the department of a proposed European business tour during the coming summer has increased the early registration.

The four is to be in the interest of a business survey of ten European countries, and is to last six weeks. This feature of the school is to be in charge of a group of Georgia Tech evening school students and their selected friends.

All candidates for admission must be at least 16 years of age, and must furnish satisfactory evidence of being qualified to carry on the desired work. Students who contemplate working toward a degree must, in addition to the above requirements, present 15 units of entrance credits from an approved secondary school. However, students are accepted without high school credits.

The schedule of courses is arranged for the benefit of those students who are working toward a degree or for a certificate of proficiency and who desire to complete their work. To do this will require that a student carry ten hours' work per week during the first three years and twelve hours per week a year thereafter.

Alonso Would Be Mechanic If Not Ruler

London, September 8.—(United News.)—If Alfonso of Spain had not been born a king he would be working in an automobile factory, the Sunday Express said today in a dispatch from Biarritz which claimed to reveal the Spanish monarch's own ideas of his job.

King Alfonso's idea of his position is that "a monarch must set an example," the dispatch said, quoting the king as follows:

"If I had not been born a king I would be working in a motor car factory. If I could have done what I like, I would have followed the example of Peter the Great, who traveled incognito throughout Europe, not shrinking from jobs in Dutch and English shipyards and factories. It is a good thing for a king."

"The idea that a king lives in a beautiful house, surrounded by silk-dressed valets, plumed lackeys and fine soldiers—a king of touch-me-not—is antiquated."

"A king is a worker just like the majority of his people. I am a worker. I was born a monarch, not because I chose, but I have to do my job like any other man."

"My inclinations are toward industry and the development of Spain, and, speaking as an advertising man, I dare say we are doing fine."

PEACH SUPERIOR COURT TO MEET

Fort Valley, Ga., September 8.—(Special.)—Peach county superior court will be in session again here next week, with Judge Malcolm Jones, of Macon, presiding over the criminal cases. After a three-day session the grand jury adjourned. In their deliberations they found 54 true bills and 13 no bills.

J. ROSS CANNON DIES AT CHARLOTTE

Member of Prominent North Carolina Family, Leader in Textile Industry.

Charlotte, N. C., September 8.—(AP) J. Ross Cannon, 39, died today in a Charlotte hospital.

One of the most prominent citizens of York, S. C., Mr. Cannon was a member of the well known Cannon family of North Carolina, whose textile interests are among the largest in the south. He entered the hospital here about 10 days ago.

The body was taken to York this afternoon and funeral services will be conducted from the home at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Cannon's death followed four years of declining health, during which time he was forced to sever his connection with active business.

A native of Concord, Mr. Cannon was the son of J. W. Cannon, pioneer cotton manufacturer and one of North Carolina's outstanding leaders of industry. He was educated at Fishburn Military academy, Davidson college and the University of North Carolina.

During his college days he was prominent in athletics, starring in both football and baseball. He was a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity and was elected president of the 12 in the crew. The rescued persons today for the most part were in such a state of utter exhaustion from shock and exposure that they could not be questioned.

A heavy storm was raging when the steamer left the harbor and within minutes it was struck by a huge wave. The vessel sank in about 60 feet of water within five minutes.

Most of the passengers were below at the time the ship was struck. Passengers tried to jump overboard through cabin windows and many seized lifebelts but they were almost completely unacquainted in the use of them.

The high waves made rescue work extremely difficult. After rescue boats had worked for hours they saved about 20. Lifelines had been launched when the Kuro began to sink but they were quickly swamped. They served, however, as something to cling to by those who jumped into the sea.

The 15-year-old Kuro was about 100 feet in length and was fully loaded with cargo.

The whole country has been saddened by the disaster and many families were in a state of dreadful uncertainty tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howell, Sr., left last night to attend the funeral of Mr. Cannon at York today.

VOTE TO DECIDE SALE OF PLANT AT BARNESVILLE

Barnesville, Ga., September 8.—(Special.)—E. L. Cook, clerk and treasurer for Barnesville today announced that the election to vote on the sale of the city electric distribution system will take place on October 15. This is one of the most heated campaigns in the history of Barnesville. The city council recommended the sale of the plant to the Georgia Power Company.

If no protest had been made the sale would have been consummated immediately, but a sufficient number of voters protested so that it will have to come to the vote of the people. There are three factions in the election, one to sell to the Georgia Power, one to sell to the Hydro Electric, and one not to sell at all but to operate as heretofore.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howell, Sr., left last night to attend the funeral of Mr. Cannon at York today.

FULL LIST OF DEAD IN SEA WRECK UNKNOWN

Helsingfors, Finland, September 8.—(AP) The extent of the disaster which overtook the passenger steamer Kuro yesterday, will not be known, it appeared tonight, until police have completed inquiries of persons missing. Estimates placed the death toll at from 80 to 130 persons.

No passenger list was compiled before the steamer, carrying many school children for a week-end, was left.

Tamperfors yesterday afternoon, Captain Saarinen, who was rescued, did not believe there were more than 100 passengers on board his vessel beside the 12 in the crew. The rescued persons today for the most part were in such a state of utter exhaustion from shock and exposure that they could not be questioned.

JEW-ARAB BOYCOTT STARTS IN JERUSALEM

One Jew Reported Stabbed Dead at Wailing Wall in London Dispatch.

London, September 8.—(AP) The colonial office today issued a communique saying the general situation in Palestine was reported quiet.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Jerusalem says that Jews and Arabs are boycotting each other, and uneasiness prevails everywhere. The dispatch reports one Jew stabbed to death near the Wailing Wall.

HEAD OF ARABS BLAMES JEWISH GREED

Jerusalem, September 8.—(AP) The grand mufti, head of the Arabs in Palestine, in a press interview today accused Jewish ambition and greed of provoking the recent outbreaks in order to bring pressure to bear on the British government.

He said that if the Arab attacks had been premeditated other steps would have been taken for simultaneous attacks on all other Jewish colonies, with cutting of the telephone and telegraph lines and similar steps, which had not been adopted.

The mufti complained that even now, while individual Jews were able to walk through Arab quarters without escort during the last nine days, there had been several Jewish attacks on Arabs. These, he said, paved the way for creation of further trouble.

The country was everywhere quiet today and Jerusalem itself was regaining a normal appearance. The removal of the aircraft carrier Courageous to Jaffa from the south was taken as an indication of the authorities that no further trouble was expected.

CONVICTS, STALKED LIKE WILD TURKEYS, CAUGHT IN SWAMP

Statesboro, Ga., September 8.—(Special.)—The three negroes who made their escape from the Bulloch county gang Friday when John Smith, also colored, was killed when he ordered Guard Mack Perkins to drop his gun, were caught today in a swamp near Stilton, a town close to the place they made their dash for liberty.

The officers were in the swamp in search of them when they heard someone whistle. Believing it was one of the fugitives the call was answered, and each time the whistle was sent through the swamp it was nearer the officers, and finally the escapes were called up like a bunch of wild turkeys.

Jim Polite and Jim Shenan are from Savannah, the former a lifer for murder and Shenan serving a sentence for fleeing an old negro woman out of her savings. The other negro was from Atlanta. When Smith ordered the guard to drop his gun he was killed after a bullet from his pistol went through the rim of the guard's hat.

50 Degrees Guaranteed!

THE Purchase of a Refrigerator should be given even more thought than is necessary in the selection of any other household necessity. And here is a proposition that will do away with all guesswork:

If you will purchase an Ice Refrigerator that we recommend, the cost to not exceed $90.00, we will guarantee it to maintain temperatures of fifty degrees Fahrenheit or less when kept reasonably well filled with ice.

The advantages of a good Ice Refrigerator over all other methods of household refrigeration include economy, both in initial cost and operation, safety, an ample supply of pure sparkling ice at all times, and a freshness and crispness to foods and vegetables impossible to attain if any substitute for ice is used.

If you will call at our salesroom, 267 Peachtree, we will show you approved refrigerators in actual use and with temperatures—not just at 50—but very much below that mark.

Children and the Kingdom—Then were brought unto him little rebuked them. But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to kingdom of heaven.—Matthew 19:13.

NATIONAL NARCOTIC FARMS.

The federal government is advertising in Atlanta for offers to sell or donate to it lands for the establishment of one of the two narcotic cure farms which it is to operate hereafter.

The farm is to be located somewhere in the Piedmont area of the southeast, including lower West Virginia and eastern Kentucky, must have at least 1,500 acres, be in proximity to a town of around 30,000, near to general transportation lines, and will contain an average of 1,500 patients, committed for cure of the narcotic addiction.

North Georgia is embraced in the allocated area and contains locations admirably adapted to the purpose of the federal farm, but none would seem to meet the condition unless near to Atlanta or to Chattanooga, because of the needed population in the nearby city.

The "dope habit" is steadily increasing in this country. There are estimated to be 1,000,000 persons afflicted by the craving for narcotic drugs. Crime is increased notably among the users of the drugs and the peddlers of them, so that the federal prisons are crowded with such criminals. The government is to try out the expedient of curing many of the narcotic offenders by treating them upon the two national narcotic farms. It is a humane endeavor and the philanthropic will look with sympathetic interest for the demonstrated results.

STOP THE MURDER ORGY.

An alarming and disheartening toll of homicides is being taken almost daily in Georgia and many of them appear to be plain murders with a liquor explanation.

It matters not at all what opinion one may have of the rightfulness and obligations of the prohibition laws the higher demands of law, order and public safety must override such opinion. When laxity in enforcing the anti-liquor law leads to a common run of human slaughters in the community, society must enforce the law or sacrifice its integrity and securities of life.

Leaving out of the equation the existence of the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act, we must have our peace establishment in all its agencies recognize that we have a Georgia prohibition law, antedat-ing the eighteenth amendment and the national prohibition act. Our officers of the law are oath-bound to enforce that law even if the United States did not exist in fact.
It was enacted to secure the sobriety of Georgia citizens and minimize liquor incitements to crime. The home-made prohibition law will serve those purposes in marked degrees if our own officials will respect their oaths and be duly diligent in enforcing the state's own anti-liquor laws. The people who do not want to be murdered should insist upon such local enforcements.

China has called out 200,000 reserves. It's up to Russia to recall their danciers in this country.

No wonder there is so much so-called "crazy gas" on the market.
Look at the way it is being taxed.
Woman's dress predicated a mild winter.
A litterateur is one who discerns
the litter in modern literature.
Trotzky says he will not visit America. That makes it unanimous.

Inspiration and faith which were Martha Berry's only munitions
when she began her humble "battle of civilization" with a crude cabin and a dozen illiterate mountain children, is now known nationwide and is drawing to her the sympathy of many helpful hearts and hands. She needs more room and facilities for the "eager, pressing through" of young people of both sexes who are hungry to obtain the knowledge and power to make their lives worth living to their own profit and that of the state and nation.

The youths she has already trained are making good in conspicuous fashions. She works with native stock that dates back to the sturdiest of Anglo-Saxon areas, and from it has arisen in America from its settlement many of the most powerful of its public benefactors, whose names and memorials adorn the histories and capitals of many nations.

DR. JOSEPH JACOBS.

The passing from life of Dr. Joseph Jacobs will spread sorrow throughout the city and the southeast. He was one of those genial and generous men who made friends far and wide and who contributed the wealth of his spirit and altruistic endeavors to the well-being of his fellow-citizens.

Dr. Jacobs early equipped himself with the science of his profession as a pharmacist and by his foresight and skill established a business of large value and extensions. That success enabled him to give enthusiastic attention to civic and cultural movements. To them he devoted the rare intelligence and enthusiasm that made him a leader and builder of sentiment and achievements.

To Dr. Jacobs belongs the unique credit of having laboriously established in world recognition the right of his early preceptor, Dr.
Crawford W. Long, as the discover of anesthesia, for surgical purposes, and it was the persistence of Dr. Jacobs that effected the placing of the statue of the famous discoverer in Statuary Hall in the national capitol.

Many thousands of personal friends and admirers will mourn his death, for they will miss the wholesome influences of a good man and valuable citizen.

JUROR RIGHTS OF WOMEN.

The notable fact is front-paged that a justice of the peace in De-Kalb county has caused Georgia's first woman juror to serve in his court. That he was clearly within his judicial rights and woman's rights as well is without tenuous question.

Since the adoption into the federal constitution of the nineteenth amendment saying that "the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex," every able woman qualified to vote is presumed to be clothed with all other civil rights, including the right to serve on juries and to hold any public office.

The questions as to those matters have been raised in other states and been definitely decided by the supreme court of the United States in such ruling cases as Rives vs. Virginia, ex parte Virginia and Strauder vs. West Virginia. It has been held that under the fifteenth amendment, almost identical with the nineteenth, the right of negroes to serve on juries and hold office cannot be denied or abridged by any state.

Whether or not the state has specifically granted such rights to women is of no moment. The rights exist under the federal constitution, and the constitution of Georgia expressly declares that "the laws of general operation in this state are—first, as the supreme law, the constitution of the United States," etc. So it must be evident beyond dispute that Justice Dillon, of DeKalb, has done no more than he is authorized by both the federal and state constitutions in summoning women to serve as jurors in his court.

Mussolini has given Italy another cold deal. He has authorized ice cream plants, the first in that country now operating in Rome.

With a six-cent gas tax a good many of us will have to work harder to feed our automobiles in the manner in which they have been fed.

A new radio is said to have a soul. The autos have bodies by Fischer; why not?

The Berry school opens.
Next Tuesday the now famous Martha Berry Schools for mountain children, located in Floyd county near to Rome, are to open their 1929-30 terms. The applications for entry by the eager and ambitious mountain youths are far more than the institution can receive—a fact which should stimulate either additional support for the Berry schools, or the creation of other like institutions by persons of great heart and great means.

The heart-grIPPING story of the American. That makes it unanimous.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Sinister Plot Seen.

American visitors to the continent
are now being accused of waging war upon the French—a war which, though very quiet, is none the less deadly.
It is carried on, according to one of the critics by means of draughts.
In a train, he points out, when the majority of passengers are comfortably settled, an Anglo-Saxon enters and immediately opens all the windows. Or it may be that in a restaurant or a ballroom the representatives of the Latin races suddenly begin to shiver, and, on making inquiries, find that an American visitor has passed that way and instructed the maitre d'hotel to open a few windows. The Frenchman cannot be suspected of any exaggerated love of fresh air, for he will stew for hours
in the stuffiest railway compartment, considering that the stuffiness is simply comfortable warmth. The Anglo-Saxon, with his passion for open windows and clean breezes, often appears to him to be a "fresh air fiend" of the most dangerous kind. He thoroughly enjoys himself and his draughts in draughts which set his Latin companions sneezing. "And later," says
our critic, "we read that Monsieur Somebody or Madame Somebody has died of bronchitis or pleurisy. These Anglo-Saxons during the tourism are killing us off individually, slowly but surely."

Jack London

Taboo.

The undersecretary of state for home affairs, Signor Michele Bissolati, has issued a circular to the prefects of Italy's 92 provinces, instructing them to check the excessive sale and distribution of the works of Jack London, such as Gorki, Tolstoy, Dostoevsky, Tolstoy and Turghieff and of the novels of Jack London, the "Iron Heel" being especially mentioned. "There is no desire," says the circular, "to interfere with the legiti-mate sale of these books at normal prices, whether in bookshops or on bookstalls, but only to check it when contingent circumstances lead to the conviction that the works in question are being diffused with the view of propagating doctrines in direct contradiction with those in which the intention to educate the new generation. When volumes, well-bound and well-printed, are offered at prices which must obviously entail a loss on the seller, there are grounds for founded suspicions that the sale is being undertaken for illicit purposes, and it should therefore be suppressed."

War on Fashions.

There is a new set of stories of the fashions adopted by Parisian priests, France, who are scandalized by the fashions exhibited in their country churches by Parisiennes on holiday, but hesitate to enforce the episcopal injunction that the entire and the churches should be refused to women who are too lightly clothed. Some formula intimated recently in which of Meudon—of which church, it will be remembered, Rabelais was once the incumbent. "If you are too hot," it runs, "remember that it is better to perspire a little on earth than to roast in hell." At Villeneuve-Saint Georges the cure has found another device. It is to cut down in the neck and short in the arm are forced by limited means to adopt this fashion, and he keeps in the vestry a dainty little white knitted frock, which he insists upon their wearing before he will marry them.

THE WORST.

The worst thing about bridge is the prize, and finding an appropriate prize is the worst feature of Ganna Walska is her voice.
The worst feature of rheumatism is the pain. The worst about a bootlegger is that he is a bootlegger. The worst feature of youth is its brashness, and the worst about age is its lack of enthusiasm.

The worst thing of motoring is the motorist. The worst of the Theodore Dreiser is his writing. The worst about swimming is the cramps.
The worst thing that happens to be at a New York city beach, where the sewage in the water is even worse than the cramps.

The worst thing Washington had to deal with was his set of false teeth. The worst statue in the United States is in the public square in Cleveland. The worst thing in school is arithmetic, and the same holds for after school. The worst feature of poverty is the deprivation of beautiful in some of its aspects, and the worst thing about wealth is that it doesn't confer good taste or appreciation of the beautiful.

The worst manners are those of Smiley Butler, but the worst headache often results from eye trouble.
The worst light to read by is red or is found in some church and on some magazine covers.

The worst crime is breach of trust.
The worst citizen is a hypocrite. The worst drink is the stuff the doctor
gives you before taking an X-ray
of your interior, and the worst coffee
is Turkish coffee. The worst feature of a boxer is his jawbones, and the worst characteristic of a mean horse is cruel cunning.

The worst lecture a woman can possess is an ungente manner, and the worst feature you may find in a man is untrustworthiness. The worst thing about Kibbel Barrymore is her voice, and the worst fish for eating is the carp. The worst medicine is castor oil, and the worst weather is a hot wind with half-frozen sleet.
The worst occupation I can think of
is that of a professional solicitor of funds. The worst public manners are the singing. The worst feature of the worst drink is the stuff the doctor
gives you before taking an X-ray
of your interior, and the worst coffee
is Turkish coffee. The worst fea-

If He Died With His Boots On, He Wasn't Bored to Death

By Robert Quillen

Stories end when the hero wins. That is called a happy ending. And both writer and reader are content to leave the future unrevealed, for they understand that a happy ending is the end of happiness.

In reality, as in fiction, the spice of life is conflict. However desirable peace and security may seem to the timid and the weary, they afford no thrill. Life is a bore when the game is won.

Do you remember how dull and empty life seemed when the great war ended? Young men came home tormented by a restlessness that the way of peace could not relieve. The zest of life was gone.

The young men dream of making a fortune and retiring to enjoy life, but the years teach them wisdom and few are willing to quit the struggle when their fortune is made. Those who do are unhappy in idleness and introspection shortens their days.

Their discontent may be due in some measure to the fact that work has become a habit, but the greater part of it is caused by their need of contact. They may cultivate a hobby to occupy their time, but it is shadow boxing. There is no fun in playing if there is no danger of losing.

The idle rich cultivate vices and extravagant follies to escape boredom, but they succeed only for a moment. They are like a sick man who reads and plays solitaire to pass the weary hours, until books and cards alike become an abomination.

The happiest people are those who must work to live. Fortunate is the man who has something to kick and the will to kick it.

For twelve years I labored with undiminished zeal to break into the best of the popular magazines—doing routine newspaper work by day and burning the midnight oil at home to produce literary gems that somehow failed to click.

Consistent failure kept me happy in trying. But when this same magazine invited me to fill a page each week, that particular goal was won, and I lost interest within a year.

The rebel rejoices in a great adventure that fills him with enthusiasm, but when he has won and settled down to the routine duties of a dictator, he is a mere laborer who has a tiresome job.

"Man's reach must exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?" Pity the man whose job is too small; life is ashes in his mouth.

It is folly to dream of arriving. "To travel hopefully is better than to arrive, and the true success is to labor."

If you would get the most out of life, pick a task that will extend your powers to the limit and keep you too busy to notice the approach of death.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

BY ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.

School Week.
All over America this week every mother is getting her children ready for school.

The older boys and girls are wondering if they selected the right course of study. Some have decided to leave school and go to work, others who decided to quit last June are now going to return.

Teachers are flocking back to their school districts with memories of a summer at a university, or a home that needed them, and of a romance which must now be carried on by letter. Some have married and the resignations are filed; some have broken their contracts and taken better jobs.

And for all these reasons this column will devote school week to a series of letters addressed to parents, teachers, boys and girls.
To the Boy Who Isn't Going Back.

I've been thinking a good deal about you this week because it's along this time of year when boys get cold feet about returning to school. Just what seems to be the trouble? Did you get tired last spring of struggling with your books? Or are you bored with school? Is that the reason you have concluded that the easiest way to get rid of your worries is to quit school?

Or, perhaps, you are a free man.
You don't want to go back to school.
Now don't read this letter with the idea that I intend to discourage you
from going to work. It may be just the thing for you to do. If a boy doesn't do well in school or dislikes school, it is a shame for him to stay there any longer, wasting his time,
his father's income and the taxpayer's money. It is much better for such a boy to go to work.

If after reading this letter you should decide to return to school, don't let your mind be so easily wondered by the thought of going back to work but go back because you believe that more education will mean more knowledge and a better future.

If you don't go back to school you need not think your education is over.
You can learn a lot of things at your job—and you will have to if you want to succeed in this world. All life is just a great big school.

Whichever way you decide, I am yours for the right decision.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK

(Special Dispatch to The Atlanta Constitution and American Newspaper Alliance.)
From the moment that the great Paul Leni's death makes another gap in the fast-fading ranks of the foreign colony of the village.

The German director who made a mystery story with such realism that it became an active contribution to silent screen work had been ill four months. During that time he had refused to let himself be photographed,
but fate decided otherwise.

Leni was a brilliant light in that group which included Ernst Lubitsch, Zola Negri, Emil Jannings, Ina Belanova, Conrad Veidt and Alexander Mack, most of whom are scattered to the four points of the compass, in vaudeville tours, foreign productions or retirement.

This foreign colony was one of the local points of interest seldom penetrated by casual visitors to the village. Americans rarely became familiar with it. Those who moved in it thought of it as the foreign idyll. They got plenty of American ways within the studio gates. Home and social life were a means of forgetting, of recreating a bit of European leisure and loveliness.

Of this colony was Dmitri Buchowetzki, brilliant Russian director who came to the village, cleaned up on silent pictures, took too long to shoot a Barrymore opus of Russia, and received his walking papers.

Buchowetzki wasn't bothered. He had made plenty of money and invested it easily, and perhaps he was a trifle weary of the village and its big motor car on the eve of departure. There was a chap who had done him a favor of sorts, a casual friend of his, and as usually Buchowetzki gave him the car.

SERMONS TO LIVE BY

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY, D. D.

Text: "By faith Moses, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. He looked unto the recompense of his reward."—Hebrews 11:24, 25.

Moses is the mountain peak of the Old Testament as Paul is of the New.
Possessed of many advantages and powers, the one thing that causes each of these men to excel is that each made the highest choice and remained faithful to it.

But each of them instructs us in the importance of the preparation for the future, possible life.

The Reef of Normans Woe

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

THE MOST CURABLE STAGE OF TUBERCULOSIS.

If regular family doctors do not diagnose tuberculosis of the lungs early enough to insure patients the best chance for recovery it is mainly because they do not get a chance to examine the patients until the disease has become moderately advanced. In spite of all efforts to educate the public about this, it seems to be just human nature to procrastinate, to put off going to the doctor until the day of and here's hoping you get the raise. But you won't get ten days off.

The monotony of school will not longer pull on you—it was certainly awfully tiresome, wasn't it, my son?
The same teachers, the same room,
the same subjects day and night out.
All these things are now behind you.
Instead you can have the fun of sitting at a machine and pulling the same lever six hundred times a day for eight hours a day and five and half or more days a week. Or, if you choose, you can park yourself on a stool, copy down endless figures on a ledger, punch an adding machine, or everlastingly take your exercise tramping around through long rows of files in which you pull out or insert the same card day after day.

Monotony are all over, from now on you are no longer a slave to any school system—you are a free man.
You can do as you please.

Now don't read this letter with the idea that I intend to discourage you
from going to work. It may be just

GIRL, 21, ENDS LIFE WITH POISON DOSE

Miss Eunice McCoy Dies Soon After Reaching Hospital; No Reason Given.

Leaving only a brief note in which there was no clue to the cause for her act, Miss Eunice McCoy, 21, ended her life by taking a poison dose at about 8 o'clock Sunday night in her apartment home at 1080 Blue Ridge avenue, according to police records.

Miss McCoy shared the apartment with Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fladger and Charles Crozier, the report said, and at the time that she swallowed the poison pellets Mr. and Mrs. Fladger were absent from the house and Crozier was asleep in his room.

Her screams attracted the attention of Mr. and Mrs. B. Farrer, who occupy an adjoining apartment, and they ran to her room, aroused Crozier and summoned medical aid. Mr. and Mrs. Fladger, who were visiting near by, were told that Miss McCoy had taken poison and they returned to their home in time to accompany her to Grady hospital, where she died shortly after her arrival.

Mrs. Fladger and Miss Willie Belle Thompson, of 60 Seventeenth street, rode in the ambulance beside Miss McCoy and they told officers that she refused to tell why she took the poison. The only communication she left was a laconic note, addressed to no one, which read "I am a coward. That's all there is to say."

The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of Harry G. Poole and Coroner Paul Donohoe stated that an inquest probably would be held today. No funeral arrangements had been made late Sunday night.

Miss McCoy's home formerly was near Commerce, where her parents now live, but she came to Atlanta several years ago and had lived here since. She had a responsible position with a local merchandising firm. She had been living at the Blue Ridge avenue apartment for only about a month, it was said.

Detectives P. H. Jones and J. J. Chester and Officer Charles Kelly conducted the investigation.

SENATE TO REOPEN BATTLE ON TARIFF

explained the nature of his employment, which he will be asked to do. To Call Farm Board.

President Hoover's farm board members are expected to be called before the agriculture committee this week, though the inquiry may not begin until next week. They will be called to testify before the committee members claim is inadequate.

Criticism of the board's policy has centered upon the chairman, Alexander Legge, formerly of the International Harvester Company, who announced it while serving as director of individual qualifications of two board members, C. B. Denman, representative of livestock for the board, and Samuel McKelvie, former governor of Nebraska.

GOOD FAITH SEEN BY BOTH FACTIONS.

By MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, D. C., September 8.—(Special.)—Decision of the democratic and progressive republicans to co-operate against the tariff is conditioned upon a good faith purpose to effect what both groups call "improvement" of the bill. Before the agreement to co-operate was made, there had been among some democrats an alternative suggestion, that suggestion was that the attack on the bill should be carried on with the primary purpose of making it appear odious to the country. The more distant object was that the republicans should pass an objectionable bill, and that the democrats should prosper therefrom in the congressional elections next year.

This conception was entertained by only a few of the democrats and by only one who could be regarded as a leader. The conception was at all times condemned by the progressive republicans. If this conception had been embraced by the democrats generally as their party policy, there would have been no coalition with the progressive republicans. Upon the return to Washington of the official democratic leader, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, it quickly became clear that the official democratic purpose would be to effect in good faith what from their point of view they call improvement of the bill. Upon the understanding that this is the purpose, co-operation with the progressive republicans was achieved.

With co-operation effected, it was decided to focus the opening attack upon the administrative and flexible provisions of the bill. This move was made to accommodate the democrats. They needed accommodation. The administrative and flexible provisions involve no specific rates on specific commodities. Therefore the democrats can unite on this part of the fight. It is doubtful as of today whether the democrats can unite in co-operation on any one rate on any given commodity. As to practically every commodity there are a number of democrats, smaller or considerable, whose states are interested. The present hope of the democrats is that by registering an opening victory on the administrative provisions they can achieve a morale which may hold all the democrats in line as respects rates on individual commodities.

Reasonable Belief.

For the opposition hope of defeating the administrative and flexible provisions there is reasonable basis. Practically every democrat will unite in this move. Literally every progressive republican will unite. In addition, some republicans oppose some portions of the administrative and flexible provisions. The most thoughtful speech delivered in this tariff fight so far was made by a distinguished republican member of the lower house, James M. Beck, against the administrative provisions which his own party votes.

The administrative provisions are intricate. A central question is whether the tariff commission shall report to the president for action, or report to congress for action. At present the tariff commission reports facts and recommendations to the president. Thereupon the president has the power to raise or lower duties to an extent not exceeding 50 per cent of the existing duty. The alternative which the democrats and progressive republicans will fight for this week is expressed in spirit in a resolution by Senator King of Utah. The resolution provides that "the tariff commission shall be an agency in the legislative branch of the government to aid the congress in the exercise of its legislative functions relating to customs duties."

While there will be some advocacy of abolishing the flexible provision entirely, the main fight will be on the question of whether individual tariff changes from time to time shall be decreed by the president or enacted by congress. In either outcome, the principal that the tariff must be flexible will be accepted and retained. That constitutes a landmark in tariff history. There was a time when the idea of piecemeal tariff revision was held at bay by the tariff party. At one time, the phrase "popeye tariff revision" had potency to excite derision.

Must Be Changes.

It is generally agreed that there must be changes in individual tariff rates from time to time without waiting for general revision of the whole tariff. The time between general revisions is too long for business under modern conditions to accommodate itself. The numbers of years between the last six general tariff revisions, including the present, have been three years from 1894 to 1907, 12 years to 1909, four years to 1913, nine years to 1922, and seven years to 1929. The average is about seven years. Under modern conditions, within seven years a tariff on a specific commodity can become archaic as an export. Within the past seven years great new industries have sprung up, such as rayon and radio, and some portions of the chemical industry.

The tariff making must be flexible enough to accommodate itself to such swiftly changing conditions is now accepted, and that principle will be employed in either outcome of this week's fight. The essential difference will be where the president shall have the option of decreeing a change recommended by the tariff commission or whether congress shall have the option of enacting the change. If the outcome this week gives the power to congress, we may enter upon a revolutionary principle.

With congress steadily making changes as part of its ordinary routine, the necessity or likelihood of periodic general revisions may be reduced. The essential difference will be a profound change in the spirit of tariff making. The whole of congress passing upon the merits of whether congress should have the option of enacting the change. If the outcome this week gives the power to congress, we may enter upon a revolutionary principle. CARAVAN OF DEATH RETURNS FROM PLANE

Pacific coast time on flights between Albuquerque and Los Angeles.

Blinded by Storm.

Aviators who were in the party of searchers said it appeared Pilot J. B. Stone was blinded by the severe rain and windstorm which beat Mount Taylor from the southwest and while keeping his bearings did not realize he was flying so near the mountain. The wind apparently carried him onto the peak.

There was no indication the plane was struck by lightning. Officials of the T. A. T., who accompanied the party, wanted to remove the bodies immediately, but United States Forester J. M. Mims, who had been commissioned by Valencia county authorities, refused to grant permission. A quarrel followed and blows narrowly were averted. Mims insisted the bodies must not be touched until the coroner and district attorney arrived.

Officials of the T. A. T. in the party refused to commence when the wreckage was reached. An unforgettable drama played itself out on the slope of Mount Taylor shortly after sun-up planes circled overhead to draw the searchers toward the tragic heap they sought, and then in the first full flash of the sun the converging group of officials and newspapermen uncovered the victims the bodies were sprawled out in grotesque positions. Hands were clenched and some had thrown an arm before their faces, as if to ward off the blow against the ground they apparently knew was coming.

Hard to Bring Out Bodies.

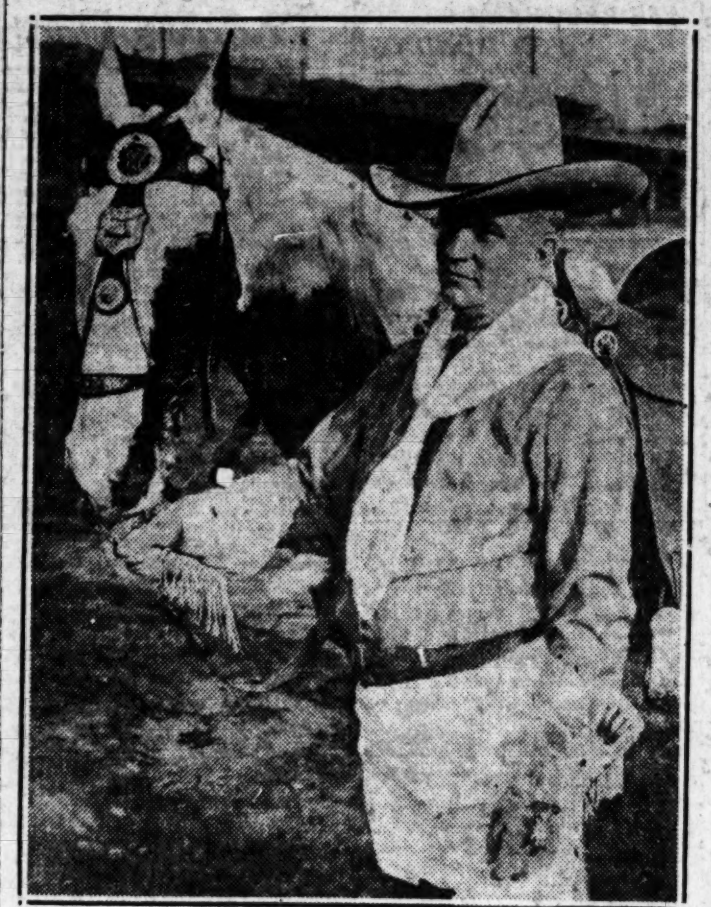

An audible sign ran through the knot of men gathered in the pine forest. A hundred persons stood there with bowed bare heads, silent. Some of them had tears in their eyes. Many had known Amasa McGaffey, Albuquerque lumberman, a passenger and victim, who long had done business with natives of this district.

Early tonight the men bringing out the bodies were reported to have met with difficulties in traversing the canyon cut terrain to where the automobiles awaited them. Indications were that the party would not reach Grant until late tonight.

A coroner's inquest, scheduled to be held at the scene of the tragedy, was waived and will be held here upon arrival of the bodies.

Although they could not be identified today, the bodies were those of: Amasa B. McGaffey, wealthy lumberman of Albuquerque; William Livermore, shipping man

Wild West of Yesteryear To Be Shown in Atlanta Today

Col. Zack T. Miller, director general, is in Atlanta today with the famous 101 Ranch Wild West Show.

Today is real Wild West Day in Atlanta.

Miller Bros. 101 Ranch is in town. The famous exhibition of early days in the west as well as the present wild west will be presented by the Miller brothers, who have brought 1,100 men and women, besides 400 horses, a herd of buffalo and other animals from their 101 ranch at Ponca City, Okla.

Today's audiences will see a genuine western round-up such as could be organized nowhere else except in the west; the feats of the famous riders, scouts, trappers, cowboys and cowboys, lariats, throwers, crack shots and buffalo hunters. They will have a chance to see the Sioux Indians in their own tepees and going about their accustomed tasks at the Highland avenue circus grounds, Mexican vaqueros, Cossacks and all the rest. They will be taken back years into history with an actual reproduction of the adventures of the pioneers as they crossed the plains in ox carts and prairie schooners, the attack of the Indians on the Ponca City-Deadwood stage coach and its rescue by United States cavalry.

In addition they will see a herd of 12 elephants, Roman chariot races, in fact, a complete circus in addition to the wild west show. It all arrived here in a special train early Sunday morning.

Two performances will be given today, at 2 and 8 p. m. The long newly designed street parade, touring our principal streets, will take place at 11 o'clock this morning. Colonel Zack T. Miller met the big show here, his private car having arrived during the night. He will be in the saddle at both performances today.

The downtown ticket office will be located at Jacobs' pharmacy, corner Broad and Alabama.

bers of three parties not including the newspapermen, stood with them.

In two or three instances cameras were snatched from the hands of the newspapermen. And film was torn from the cameras. An Associated Press photographer eluded those intent upon appropriating the cameras, snapped his pictures, and returned to Grant, in time to dispatch his film to Los Angeles on a chartered plane.

PASSENGERS IN RESCUE SHIP ARRIVE.

Kansas, City, September 8.—(P)—Three of the passengers on the Western Air Express plane which yesterday discovered the wreckage of the Transcontinental Air Transport liner, City of San Francisco, arrived here today on a train from Tucumcari, N. M. They were Rex Clark, Los Angeles, part owner of the Detroit News; Lester Luhnrow, Los Angeles, and Harry Coleman, Elizabeth, N. J.

The story of the sighting of the wrecked plane, as related by Mr. Clark and his companions, indicates that Clark and the steward, named Johnson, saw the wreckage before pilot George Rice.

Mr. Clark said the plane was 30 miles away from the wreckage when the "spot" was sighted. The plane had been zig-zagging in an effort to locate the lost liner.

As the plane neared the "spot" it became evident it was not snow and Rice banked his craft steeply as he circled it at an altitude of 1,000 feet, Mr. Clark said.

"We could see only a part of the wings and the charred trees surrounding it. It appeared we were looking down into a hole in the carpet of treetops. The area was blackened from flames.

"It must have burned fiercely. Our plane was banking very steeply as we circled and we could look from the windows almost straight down into the hole where the lost plane lay. We circled three times and then Rice headed for Albuquerque.

"Twenty-five miles from Tucumcari the Western Air Express plane was forced down when an alleron control hinge broke.

"We had a thrill then," said Coleman. "The pilot was an expert and brought the plane down in fine shape but we did some staggering when the alleron came loose. The party went by automobile to Tucumcari.

LINDBERGH'S REACH WAYNOKA, OKLA.

Waynoka, Okla., September 2.—(United News.)—Flying through a drizzle of rain which greatly slowed his progress on the latter part of his hop from Winslow, Ariz., Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, accompanied by his wife, landed here early tonight.

YEGGMEN CRACK SAFE AT MACON

Macon, Ga., September 8.—(P)—Yeggmens, described as amateurs, literally blew to pieces the safe of a barbecue stand on the Forsyth road, early this morning, escaping with $25 in cash.

The safe cracking was not discovered until employees of the barbecue stand arrived in the morning. The outer safe lid, they found, had been hurled across the room, burying itself in the opposite wall so fast it could not be removed by hand.

Because of the apparent crudeness of the job, Sheriff's deputies characterized it the work of amateurs. The whole safe had been shattered, laying open its contents, which proved to be only the $25. The officers reported after investigation that they were entirely without clues.

BOTH SIDES TAKE REST IN TRIAL OF STRIKERS

Charlotte, N. C., September 8.—(AP) The prosecution took advantage of today's cessation of court activities to rest before the final drive in its battle to convict sixteen Gastonia labor leaders and strikers of the murder of Police Chief O. F. Adersholt.
Between the time of the conference of state's attorneys yesterday immediately after Judge M. Y. Barnhill rapped for the adjournment of court and a proposed conference to be held tomorrow before court reconvenes, the side which now is the aggressor has marked time.
Solicitor John G. Carpenter spent the greater part of the day in a Gastonia hospital at the bedside of his wife, who has been seriously ill. The solicitor was forced to absent himself from the courtroom part of one day last week while she was undergoing an operation.
Other state's attorneys were having a complete rest while the defense attorneys also were taking things easy. They waited for the prosecution to continue its lengthy presentation of evidence.
The case enters its third week tomorrow. The first nine days were consumed in the prolonged business of selection of the jury, in which nearly 700 veniremen were summoned and actually examined.
The state has been presenting evidence for three days, twenty-seven witnesses having been called. Eleven of this group were character witnesses.
Testimony of the officers who accompanied Police Chief Adersholt to the union headquarters of the Lory mill strikers on the night of July 7 was one of the high lights of the trial last week.
In all of this testimony, the fact has been stressed that the police chief and the other officers were leaving the grounds when the shots were fired on them. The officers say they had made no move to draw their pistols up to the time the first shot was fired. They admit having arrested one of the strikers for attempting to halt them as they entered the grounds.
Yesterday, another high mark was reached when H. C. Jackson, a Gastonia police officer, testified he heard Fred Erwin Dean of Lawrence, Mass., leader in the strike movement in Gastonia, tell picketers to "shoot to kill" if any one tried to stop them.
Various other statements have been attributed to Dean and his co-defendants, including the statement that they shouted "shoot him, shoot him," as the police chief walked away from the union grounds.

FOURTH GANGSTER SLAIN IN WEEK IN CHICAGO WAR
Chicago, September 8.—(AP)—The slaying of Patrick O'Donnell, 33, in a speakeasy on the west side today brought to four the number of gangsters who have been killed since a week ago.
O'Donnell deviated from underworld practice by naming his slayer as Joey Mangels, alleged blind pig operator and hoodlum.
Mangels is a reputed member of a north side gang, and police fear the shooting may result in reprisals.
The first of the week's gang executions was that of early Monday, when Henry Connors, minor political terrorist, was shot down in a cabaret. Three days later, By Cawley and Edward Westcott, alleged racketeers, were shot and killed.

FEDERAL TRADE BOARD TO REOPEN POWER CASE

Commission Will Look Into Finances as Well as Propaganda.

Washington, September 8.—(United News.)—Investigation of propaganda activities and the financial structure of the gigantic utility industry throughout the country is to be resumed this month by the federal trade commission.

Preparations have been virtually completed by the commission for undertaking the task of laying bare the entire financial set-up with special relation to holding company status in the power industry.

In similar manner to the propaganda phase of the investigation, now nearly completed, the commission's inquiry into financial arrangements of utilities is expected to produce evidence that will prove of extreme public interest.

Revelations by the commission, which exposed for the first time the widespread extent of propaganda agencies fostered by the power industry, startled the nation. Sensational testimony relating to purchase of 13 newspapers at a total cost of more than $10,000,000 by the International Paper & Power Co., featured the close of the propaganda hearings.

When hearings are resumed within a few days the commission expects to place in the record a few remaining documents relating to the propaganda phase and to listen to a defense by utility lawyers of that industry's activities. It will then launch into the financial angle of the inquiry which may require another year to complete. The inquiry was started in March, 1928, and open hearings have been in progress intermittently ever since.

Chief Counsel Robert E. Healy, of the commission, has emerged from the investigation as a relentless prosecutor, though utilities witnesses have testified to his fairness. From the lips of utility executives and papers from their files he has built up a case showing propaganda in schools, press, rostrum and, in one case, even the pulpit.

In appearance, Healy is a typical Vermont, his native state. His lanky frame, topped with snow-white crest of hair, dominates the hearing room. Off duty, however, he presents a different aspect and is noted among his intimates as a writer of verse and songs. He is also extensively fond of mystery stories and his skill in detecting the guilty person is said to rival his ability at unearthing utility propaganda schemes.

CEDARTOWN JAIL GUARDED AFTER ESCAPE ATTEMPT

Cedartown, Ga., September 8.—(A-P.)—An extra guard was added to the attendants at the Polk county jail here today after an announcement by Solitor-General S. W. Ragsdale that an attempted jail break by R. C. Poe, of Birmingham, Ala., under sentence of life imprisonment, and Ernest Smith, alias Bob Conway, of Decatur, Ala., had been frustrated yesterday.

Poe was convicted last week of the murder of Sam Greer, of Stone Mountain, Ga., following a robbery at the Aragon mills last June 23. Smith and Martin Shumuck, his alleged complices in the robbery and killing,
are awaiting trial on murder charges.
The solicitor-general said that Poe and Smith were found smuggling back saws to each other in a magazine.
Mr. Ragsdale added that he expected to dispose of the cases of Shumuck and Smith on Friday or Saturday of this week in Polk superior court.

COL. J. M. JOHNSON, OF MARION, S. C., GETS DECORATION

Washington, September 8.—(A-P.)—The war department today announced award of the distinguished service medal to Colonel John Monroe Johnson, corps of engineers reserve, of Marion, S. C., for "exceptionally meritorious services" as colonel with the engineers of the A. E. F.

"Colonel Johnson served with distinction with the 117th engineers, 42d division, American expeditionary forces," the citation read, "in various capacities until December, 1918, when he became commanding officer of that regiment. He also served as chief engineer, 42d division and was charged with the duty of repairing and opening up roads and routes for the advance of all troops in the division sector during the Meuse-Argonne offensive. By his sound judgment, untiring energy, great resourcefulness and ability, he contributed materially to the success of the American expeditionary forces."

FISHERMAN DROWNS

Boat Overturns as Men Run Trot Line.

Kingsport, Tenn., September 8.—(A-P.)—Noah Hicks, 27, formerly of Leesburg, Fla., was drowned in the Climax river near the Kingsport wharf
early today while running a trot line with Ralph Smith, of this city.

Smith was rowing the boat, Hicks being engaged in hauling in the line when it suddenly overturned. Hicks cried out that he couldn't swim and Smith went to his assistance, the former grasping him, and both were submerged two or three times before

NEW YORK SOLON PROTESTS VOIDING OF PACKING DECREE

P.)—Representative Celler, of New York, has expressed to Secretary Hyde his vigorous opposition to modification of

was the basis of the consent decree.

"It is well to remind the people of this country and the department of agriculture," he wrote in a letter made public today, "that the federal trade commission, after an exhaustive investigation, gave a report which was the basis of the consent decree.
"That report," he added, "charged the then 'big five' meat packers (now reduced to the 'big four') with almost all the crimes of the decalogue."
The representative said it appeared that Swift, Armour, Morris, Cudahy and Wilson were then "not only in practically exclusive control of gathering, preparing and selling all meat products, but they controlled the gathering and selling of countless numbers of by-products.

"I personally view with a great deal of alarm," he concluded, "any attempts to modify this decree and hope that the department of agriculture will report unfavorably thereupon.

Many members of the house of representatives are also of the same opinion and retail meat merchants and retail grovemen, who have viewed with much trepidation the spread of chain stores, are also on record throughout the land as opposed to the modification of this decree."

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

FLIP HAS A SWIM.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

you would nothing have to rue, sure you know whom you pursue.

—Old Mother Nature.

Bowser the Hound and Flip the rrier had gone down on the Greenadows to see what they might see. Bowser trotted sedately along. Flip didn't sedate if he wanted to see. Flip was young and full of spirits. He simply had to race around. Bowser would stop occasionally and sniff in the grass, but Flip was sniffing all the time. It was all great adventure to Flip.

"Where are we going?" Flip asked. "What do you say if we go over to the Smiling Pool?" replied Bowser. "Are we likely to find any one to see over there?" inquired Flip. "You see, Flip's idea of a good time is to chase some one."

"We might," replied Bowser. "Who?" demanded Flip. "I don't know," replied Bowser. "We'll find out when we get there."

So together they made their way over to the Smiling Pool. As they were near it Flip raced ahead. He was the first to reach the bank of the Smiling Pool. He looked all over it and saw no one. This disappointed him. He looked disappointed. In a moment or two Bowser joined him.

"Well," said Bowser, "have you seen any one?"

"No," replied Flip, "there isn't anybody here."

"Chug-a-rum!" said a deep voice from somewhere down below.

It was so unexpected that it startled Flip. He looked at Bowser quizzically, but Bowser appeared not to have heard it.

"Chug-a-rum!" said the same deep, off voice again.

"What was that?" demanded Flip. Bowser grinned. "That was Grandfather Frog," said he. "Don't you know Grandfather Frog?"

Flip shook his head. "This is the first time I ever heard of him," said he. "What is he like?"

"Look at him and see for yourself," replied Bowser. "There he is, now there, sitting on his big, green lily pad."

Flip looked at the lily pad. "I don't see any one down there but a green Toad," said he.

Bowser chuckled. "If you should all Grandfather Frog a Toad," he said he, "he would be insulted. That isn't a Toad at all; that is Grandfather Frog himself. He is first cousin to Old Mr. Toad, but he lives in the water instead of on land. Just think that you shouldn't know Grandfather Frog! You have a lot to learn. You certainly have a lot to learn."

"Chug-a-rum!" said Grandfather Frog once more, and jumped at a foolish green fly that came near. The fly disappeared and so did Grandfather Frog, for he dived into the water and went down into the mud.

Flip couldn't sit still as Bowser the Hound did. He began to explore. He ran up along the bank and into the bushes, where the Laughing Brook enters the Smiling Pool. Suddenly he caught sight of a brown-coated fellow sitting on the end of a log. He knew it was a rat and Flip was death on rats. He made a rush for this fellow. The rat went into the water with a splash. In a moment his head appeared. He was swimming out toward the Smiling Pool. Flip didn't hesitate. He plunged into the water and started after that rat. He hadn't the least doubt that he would catch him.

Bowser, on the bank, grinned. "Well, anyway, Flip will have a swim," said Bowser.

Princess Dies.

Palermo, Italy, September 8.—(AP)—Princess Olimpia Colonna, widow of Prince Fabrizio Colonna, died today.

Among her children with her at the end were Prince Marc Antonio, Don Ascanio, Marchesa Negrotto and Donna Margherita.

SEEMS LIKE OLD TIMES TO HAVE OUR OLD HOUSEBOAT BACK AGAIN, BUT, THE TWINS HAVE GONE TO THEIR FANCY SCHOOL IN MASSACHUSETTS AND THE SKINNY GUY IS WAY DOWN IN PADDOCKA. WE FELT LIKE BUT THERE WAS PLENTY OF WORK TO DO. WE HAD TO WASH WINDOWS, MY GOODNESS, BUT THEY WERE DIRTY. OUR CAPTAIN AND I SAT ON A BOX AND TOLD THE FELLOWS HOW TO CLEAN 'EM. WE GOT A LOT OF RAGS AND TOLD THEM TO GO TO WORK. WHICH THEY DID.

AFFECTS HIP YOKE.

A novelty skirt crepe in red lines on dark ground, so suitable for all-day occasions, made at a saving and in a remarkably short time.

Style No. 695 is simply a long-waisted bodice pointed at front that affects a hip yoke. Merely join front and back of bodice at sides and shoulders. The two-piece skirt is cut circular at front, and is seamed at sides and attached to the bodice, and the dress is ready for sleeves to be set into armholes.

This attractive dress comes in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust, and is made with 3 1/4 yards of 40-inch material in the medium size. Think of it! A stunning dress whose cost will be a mere trifle.

Black crepe satia is another interesting idea that will make it appear so entirely different. Use the dull surface of crepe for bow tie and binding.

Rich wine red canton crepe is effective and ultra-new.

ENGINEERS OPEN

EXPOSITION TODAY

AT CHATTANOOGA

Chattanooga, Tenn., September 8.—(AP)—The forty-seventh annual convention of the National Association of Power Engineers and its auxiliary, the National Exhibitors' Association, got under way here today with an organization meeting of officers of the two associations.

The doors will swing wide open tomorrow night, when exhibits from 44 states and embracing almost every kind of power machine known will be displayed to the public.

Delegates began arriving Saturday and continued to pour into the city throughout today, while several hundred more were expected to sign the register before it is formally closed Tuesday. Reservations have been made for nearly 600 official delegates with their wives, representatives of 168 manufacturers, and other interested visitors expected to swell the total to 2,000 or more.

Thomas R. Hurlbly, president of the engineers, arrived this afternoon on a special train from Los Angeles, which brought delegates from the west. Another special train came from the east, bringing officials from Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Baltimore and many other cities. The more than 200 delegates already on the ground met their president at the station and staged a rousing welcoming party for him.

The celebration will be held in Savannah 150 years after the wounding of General Pulaski in that city during the Revolutionary War. It will be opened with a solemn high memorial mass, conducted by the Bishop of Savannah, Right Reverend Michael J. Keyes, assisted by a number of Polish priests.

MEXICO'S BUDGET

REDUCED FOR 1930

Mexico City, September 8.—(AP)—Total appropriations of 280,000,000 pesos (about $135,600,000), which is 8,373,000 less than in the current year, was recommended today by the government budget commission for 1930.

The recommendation followed a series of meetings with representatives of all government departments.

At the same time the commission indicated the government income next year from all sources would be 287,000,000 pesos, with a surplus of 7,000,000 pesos (about $3,301,500) over expenditures.

An appropriation of 27,000,000 pesos was recommended for payment on the public debt, including the exterior and interior debt and pension lists, instead of the 34,000,000 appropriated for this purpose in 1929.

The war department would receive 80,000,000 as compared with $4,300,000, while 40,000,000 pesos, 3,000,000 over the current year, was recommended for the department of communications and public works. An increase of 3,000,000 to a total of 40,000,000 was recommended for public education. The public education budget has thus been increased nearly 9,000,000 over the appropriation five years ago.

The economy in the war department was figured on the basis of a reduced number of troops. The communications appropriation would vote large sums for road construction, including completion of the highway between Mexico City and Nuevo Laredo on the Texas border, which is expected to be finished next year.

The education department will concentrate on the establishment of rural schools.

THE HAWK

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS

Douglas Doring, a young British peer, is sent to Dartmouth prison on the perjured testimony of Cora Section, an unscrupulous woman in love with him. In revenge, because he snubbed her advances, she swears she will kill a policeman during a night club raid.

Doring is a famous aviator, but to keep this knowledge from his mother and spare her worry, he has been using the assumed name of Douglas Harris; and as Douglas Harris he is tried and convicted.

He is released from prison in spectacular fashion, right under the eyes of his guard, by means unknown; is shaved and dressed in new clothes, and driven to the Gunter hotel where, to his amazement, he is greeted by Cora. She is registered as his wife.

Cecily Warren, the girl Douglas loves, is also staying at the Gunter. She sees Douglas embraced by Cora, on his arrival, and jumps to the conclusion he must be secretly married. Disillusioned and heartbroken, she leaves for London.

Douglas meets his father's old friend, Mr. Aylmer Granston, in the lobby, and accepts his invitation to drive to London. He escapes from Cora, leaving a note. Immediately she wires James Malloy, well known amateur connoisseur of the arts and a neighbor of the Granstons. As Malloy is decoding his wire, Martha Ferris, Cecily's maid, calls. She is obviously in his employ. He orders her to bring her mistress within a few days to a town called Mortvaig in Scotland.

That night, while Doring is dining with the Granstons, he calls Cecily. Later, Cecily comes in for bridge, not knowing Doug is there. She greets him rigidly and creates a sensation by announcing she hears he is married. He denies it, but Cecily believes he is lying. In answer to a summons, he goes to see Cora.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

A PLACE CALLED MORTVAIG.

"O, Douglas. At last!" Cora greeted him. "I've been on tenterhooks all the evening. What do you think of my little nest?" she asked, archly.

"Delightful!" he said, conventionally. He expected her to upbraid him for his flight from Princetown, but she seemed to be in a thoroughly good temper. More than that, there was about her an air of triumph that made him feel vaguely uneasy.

"I'm so glad you like it," she said, as if he had given her enthusiastic praise. "What do you think of this dress? It's the same color as your eyes."

Doring bit his lip. "Your note spoke about my safety," he reminded her. "I imagined my safety would look after itself—now that you had set me on the road, as it were."

"And so you thought you could do without me! You can see no danger, so you don't believe there is any."

As she spoke she switched off the light.

"What's the idea?" he asked, sharply.

She had groped her way to the window, and now pulled the curtain aside.

"Look!" she whispered.

She caught him by the sleeve, and drew him to the window.

"All I can see is a man standing by that pillar box."

"What sort of a man?" she prompted.

"Looks uncommonly like a plain clothes policeman."

"He is. He has been here for over an hour. When you drove up, he questioned the taximan."

Instinctively Doring shrank back from the window.

"If you knew he was there, why didn't you let me come here. If it weren't absurd, after the immense cost and trouble you've given yourself I would say it looks as if you had led me into a trap."

"I didn't set the trap. You'll find later on I sent you another message, telling you not to come here."

"Good Lord!" he exclaimed.

He dropped into an armchair, and buried his head in his hands. So blind fortune after all had only been playing cat and mouse with him! It had given him these few hours of freedom in order that he might suffer the more acutely.

"There are many ways out of these flats," Cora told him, as she turned on the light. "There's no immediate danger—even if they suspect you are here—which is unlikely. They're probably watching the place for some other reason. In fact, I'm sure they are."

He could not wholly grasp the significance of her words. He was still crouching in the chair—seeing again the cells—the face of the rock that he must go on stupidly smiting with his pick—year after year. He became conscious that Cora was standing over him, and knew with shame that he had seen the expression on his face.

"You poor, broken thing!" In her voice was a scorn that went beyond scorn to something that was nearly pity. "To think I once adored you!"

like all those stupid schoolgirls who used to buy your photograph!"

He made no answer.

"I was in love with you, Douglas!" she went on.

"Yes—er—you paid me the compliment of saying so at the time, if I remember rightly," he cut in, coldly.

"And you refused me—turned me down flat—for the sake of some prim little miss you wanted to marry. It's funny to think how you hurt me, Douglas. I could never put you out of my mind. I went on idealizing you after you were in prison. I thought you would dominate the place—in spite of it has dominated you. You're terrified of it."

"Quite true! What then?"

"I hate you—because you've shown me that I've been in love with a coward and a fool and a weakling."

"Good! Then our—er—romance is at an end."

"Our romance is just beginning," she cut in, fiercely. He looked at her in bewilderment, and her eyes glanced meaningfully in the direction of the window.

Then in a hard, triumphant whisper, "You don't refuse—now."

She held her arms toward him in a mocking gesture. With a genius all her own, her face cried aloud that she despised him—and yet that she wanted him.

"Funny," he rapped out. "You're not just being offensive—you really do believe I would make love to you to save my skin. Thanks awfully, but I'd rather get back to my cell."

"Bluff!" she sneered.

"I dare say. But if it is, I'm bluffing myself as well. I'd rather go back to my cell than go on using your money—coming to you for help and protection—and giving you the right to believe you can demand what you like of me. By giving myself up to that fellow outside, I can probably keep you out of it. Good night!"

"Douglas!"

"Look here, don't make a scene. I am, as you said just now, a poor broken thing with a little self-control. Remember it would give me great pleasure to strangle you in return for swearing I hit that policeman with a bottle—while my other arm was round your waist. Round—your—waist! Good God!"

"Douglas! You mean it! I can see it in your eyes. I am afraid now."

"Why? I won't tell them you helped me and they won't bother to find out, once I've given myself up."

"Who are you afraid of, then?"

"O, no one! No one, of course!" There was no humbug about her being afraid. She really was afraid of someone.

"I know you mean to do it. Be a sport, Douglas. I've done my best to get you out—to make amends. Give me a little consideration."

"My dear girl, you've overdone it," he said, irritably. "You've made it clear you think you can order me to kiss you if you feel inclined. I have to remind myself that you're paying for my food and clothing."

"I'm not."

"I'm beginning to understand. You are merely the agent in the case. Who is the principal?"

She shook her head with such confidence he knew she would never tell him.

"It's rather ridiculous," he scowled. "Is it a man who is behind you in all this?"

She moved away from the door. Her expression had changed again. She was no longer trying to triumph over him but rather she was no longer afraid of him. The rashness might run counter to the wishes of the mysterious individual on whose behalf she had been acting.

"You are to meet the person you call the principal at a place called Mortvaig," she said.

"When?"

"Next Wednesday."

"Very well," said Doring, after a pause. "It all seems unnecessarily mysterious but I'm desperately grateful to you and every one who helped me to get out. And now I'll say good night."

It was not until he reached his club that he remembered the plainclothes man by the pillar box, and then the recollection came without fear. Somehow fear had vanished. Curiosity was rampant.

"Mortvaig," he repeated. "Mortvaig. Next Wednesday. Right. I'll be there."

Cubs, Out of Slump, Lead National League In Week's Play

INDIANS TIE CHICAGO CLUB IN AMERICAN

Fans of Two Leagues Center Attention on Battles for Position

By William J. Chipman, Associated Press Staff Writer.
New York, September 8.—Although the Cubs rebounded from their Pittsburgh slump with sufficient force to pile up six victories and a single defeat in the seven days ending last night, chief interest in the major league campaigns rested in the various battles for position.

Cleveland, with six games won and one lost, tied the Cubs for the best record of the week, ousted the Browns from third place and made threatening gestures at the runner-up Yankees.

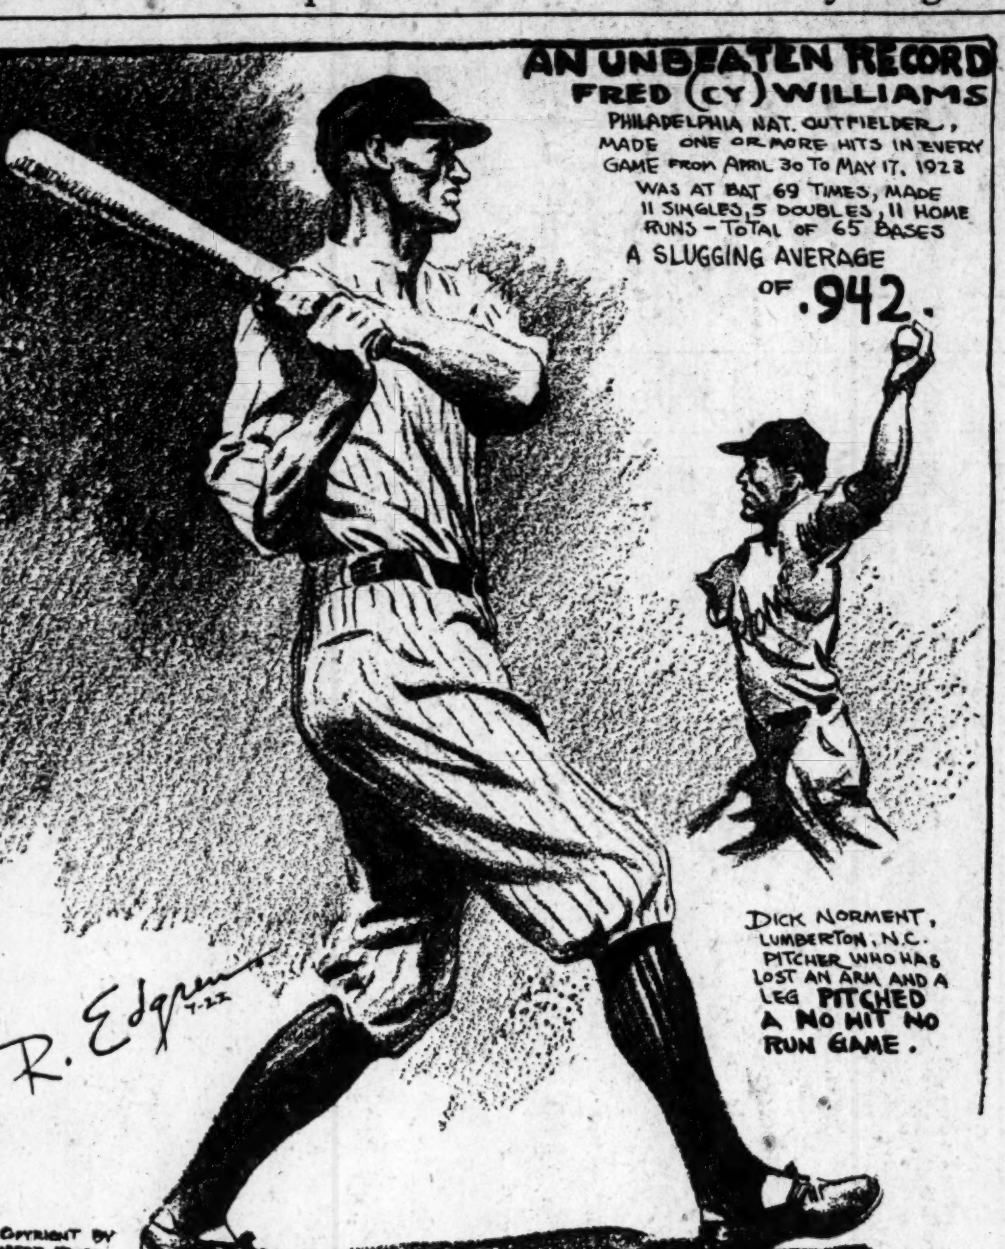

The Pirates won five and lost three, throwing considerable cold water on the plans of John McGraw to finish second best in the National League. Ten days ago seemed that the Giants had only to play out the schedule and runner-up honors would be theirs, but all that was changed by the rejuvenation of the Pirates in their five-game series against the Cubs, in which the Cubs took four victories. The Giants won only one.

The Corsairs led both leagues with 97 hits, but fell considerably shy of the Cubs in runs. The Indians, who hit safely 96 times, crossed the plate with 71 markers against 56 scored by the Pirates. A comparatively light-hitting week in the American league saw the Indians on top with 70 blows, and the Senators with 37 runs. Walter Johnson's men had out of their good week, winning four out of six to tie the Athletics for the second best mark in the circuit for the seven days.

Cleveland showed by far the best defense in either circuit with only 13 enemy runs charged against its pitching staff. The Giants technically headed the National League with only 24 opposition runs.

ANSLEY PARK TIES WEST END IN GOLF LOOP

Victory Over Marietta Sunday Causes Dead-lock for Lead.

Ansley Park, with a 6-to-3 victory Sunday over the Marietta golf team on the Ansley Park course, went into a tie with West End for the leadership of the North Georgia Golf League.

The regular schedule ended last Sunday, but three weeks ago Marietta and Ansley Park were unable to play their match and it was postponed until Sunday afternoon.

West End and Ansley Park have each won four and lost two matches, while Marietta has won three and lost three. Marietta has won one and lost five matches.

Ansley Park played unusually good golf to defeat the Cobb county team and one of the matches between Johnny Green and Mugsy Smith, of Ansley Park, and Frank McNeil and Joe Wyatt, of Marietta, ended all square.

Play progresses at West End. West End golfers put in a busy week-end and Sunday completed all the quarter-final matches in the annual club championship. Semi-finals in all flights will be played during the week with the finals next week.

In the championship flight Dr. T. E. Tolson was beaten by Roy Garrison, 5-4, in an upset. J. I. Cook, Jr., the medalist, defeated A. F. Livey 4-3. Johnny Adamson defeated J. A. Henderson 3-1, and C. D. Gentry defeated Dr. J. M. Swicegood 1 up on the 19th green.

A. W. G. A. Meet Is Postponed. A one-day medal play tournament for members of the Atlanta Woman's Golf Association scheduled for today over the Ingleside course has been postponed until Wednesday, September 11. The postponement was due to the opening of the city schools.

Ingleside Ends First Round. With three unusually close and interesting matches, Ingleside golfers completed every match Sunday afternoon in the first round of the annual Oscar Elsas trophy tournament. A total of 111 men took part in the 4-to-3 victory over Walter Wolff, one of the best players in the club, and Dr. Sam Silverman's 2-up over Robert Schwab, another of the club's best.

Capital City Players Rest. Capital City golfers completed only two matches Sunday afternoon in the first round of the annual president's trophy tournament. H. R. Wagar defeated N. A. Broyles, 4-3, in the only match of the national tennis singles championship at the West Side Tennis Club today.

Shields Wins Only Net Match. Forest Hills, N. Y., September 8.—(P)—Frank Shields, of New York, conquered Kenneth Appel, of South Orange, N. J., in straight sets in the only match of the national tennis singles championship at the West Side Tennis Club today.

Shields, who drew a first-round bye won in easy fashion by scores of 6-3, 6-2, 6-2. This match, scheduled for yesterday, was postponed until today because Appel was taken ill.

Barons Bolster Chance To Win Second Flag

Birmingham Faces Final Week With Lead of Two and One-Half Games.

Memphis, Tenn., September 8.—(AP)—The determined stand of the league-leading Birmingham Barons will netted them eight victories in 10 games the past week has bolstered the Barons' chances for their second Southern association pennant in two years.

With the flag race ending in just one more week, the Barons cherished a lead of two and one-half games over Nashville which won five and lost three. New Orleans, once considered a contender, now apparently has only an outside chance as it dropped to four games from the top in splitting even in eight contests.

All told, the eight teams in 22 games batted out 554 hits, scored 271 runs and committed 70 errors. Only 14 home runs were tallied.

Johnny Dobbs' champions led the loop in hitting with 98 safeties, and tied with Memphis in scoring with 46 runs. However, the Chickasaws played but seven games and won five. The Indians collected 73 hits and held their opponents to the fewest runs—18. Doc Prothro's team is seven and a half games out of first place.

The orphans of the Bears in nine games, won three, scored the fewest times—23—and had the worst fielding record, having committed 13 misplays. Chattanooga, almost destined to finish in the cellar, won only one game in eight attempts. Opponents scored 62 times against the weak of the Lookouts, the most in that department.

On the defense, Wilbur Good's Atlanta Crackers showed best, making but four misuses. Nashville came out with only six errors.

There was a scarcity of home runs, despite that it was one of the most active weeks of the season. Three teams—Memphis, Nashville and Little Rock—shared circuit drive honors with three each. Vick of Chattanooga and Brazill of Memphis were the only individuals to collect two four-play hits.

One of the Volunteers' trio of over-the-fence drives was Sunny Jim Poole's 32d of the season. The Vol. Rock—shared circuit drive honors with three each. Vick of Chattanooga and Brazill of Memphis were the only individuals to collect two four-play hits.

Other individuals credited with home runs were: Shiner and Partidge of Nashville; Rose Mulachy and Willingham, of Little Rock; Taylor, of New Orleans; Jeanes, of Memphis; Cullup, of Atlanta, and Winsett and Moore, of Mobile.

The following table shows the number of games each team has played the past week, including yesterday. When they get victory, the runs, hits, errors, opponents' runs and home runs:

Team	G.	W.	L.	R.	H.	E.	O.R.H.R.
Birmingham	10	8	2	86	14	41	33
Memphis	10	7	3	71	12	33	30
Nashville	10	5	5	68	11	30	27
New Orleans	10	5	5	68	11	30	27
Chattanooga	10	3	7	57	9	24	24
St. Louis	10	3	7	57	9	24	24
St. Louis	10	3	7	57	9	24	24

Counting everything he has only 45 men from whom to pick. He lost 12 men from last year's squad, including Hooper, fullback and weight man; Evans, the crack linebacker; Walls, the regular center, and Oelkers, who could do about anything.

But he has some promising material from last year's scrub squad. Calvert De Coligny, freshman captain and track man, as fine a looking buck as ever trotted the sod, appears in top form and has been practicing with the backs, but will probably land in the line where power is needed.

Then there is Richard Bankston, 205-pound scrub center; Clagett Upton, George MacDairmaid, Sam Zeimurray, Vernon Haynes, Ross Stroble and about a dozen others who shape up as good raw material. This does not include Gerald Dalrymple, 180-pound end, who was forced out last year by a broken leg but who is back now, fit and ready.

So much for the past and future. A glance at the present will delight the eyes. Willis B. (Bill) Banker, who comes off the bench, has been branded as one of the best football players who ever lived, is back among us as captain and ready to give demonstrations on how a halfback should be held. Ike Armstrong, the Whatley brothers, A. E. Massey, Ford Seewans and Lowell Dawson are on hand contending for backfield jobs along with a half dozen others.

In fact there is more material than is needed for the backfield, and some of it no doubt will have to be used in the line.

However, the line is not in distress. Not with such men as Elmer McNamee and Charles Rucker, tackles; Holland and Dalrymple, ends; Roberts, center; Bodenger and Upton, guards, and others. There is no trouble along the main line, but a sufficiency of reserve linemen where the rub comes in.

Coch Biersman sizes the situation up this way:

Tulane's line this year should be fairly large and rugged. There is much uncertainty about the end. The backfield will be fast but not large and powerful. Much depends on condition, examinations, injuries or the lack of them, the speed with which the team can round into shape, and the staying power it has after getting into shape.

TULANE LOOMS AS DARK HORSE OF CONFERENCE

Bierman Must Whip Rookies in Shape To Produce Winner.

By Ralph Whately, Associated Press Staff Writer.
New Orleans, September 8. Like an army, Tulane's Green Wave will win or lose on its reserve strength.

But it takes reserves to stand the battering of a hard football campaign, and that is Tulane's weakness. Bernie Bierman, the solemn coach, can put on the field 11 of as good "gridders" as can be found, but it will remain to be seen what he can do to fill the gaps.

"A population of 500,000 by 1932" is Atlanta's slogan. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

Sunshine Peanut Butter Co. Ships Another Carload Lot

The Sunshine Peanut Butter Company, 185 Peters street, S. W., shipped another carload of peanut butter during the past week to the Lipscomb-Russell Company, of Greenville, South Carolina.

This makes the second car the Sunshine Peanut Butter Company has sent this Greenville firm in 90 days, and so well has this brand of peanut butter taken hold among the South Carolina people that another car is ordered to leave the last of this month.

When it is taken into consideration that all the peanut butter sent to this big South Carolina wholesaler is put up in small glass jars, ready for table use, about 45,000 jars, then the shipping of a car is a rare thing.

Some idea of the tremendous amount of peanut butter made and sold by this old Atlanta firm may be gained from the fact that during the dry last week it had three carloads of glasses in transit to Atlanta at the same time. While the company likes to sell carload lots, it also sells case lots, too, and is sending out great quantities in 10 and 100-case lots to all parts of the south.

While the proprietor of the Sunshine Peanut Butter Company, F. D. Terry, has been identified with the peanut business for nearly 30 years and making peanut butter since 1916, it was a little over three years ago that he discovered a secret process for improving the product and since that time the Sunshine brand has become very popular wherever they are once tasted. That is the reason it takes a carload of 45,000 glasses given by one firm to duplicate the car it bought three months ago.

Mr. Terry is not the only one that is pleased about the great amount of business he is giving employment to many people. The growth of this firm in the past two years is a matter of much interest to Mr. Terry's friends in and out of the state, and they are pleased at his success.

Mr. Terry takes a keen interest in all that is for the best interests of Atlanta and Georgia, and he extends a warm invitation to all visitors to the coming Southeastern fair to make his place of business their headquarters while visiting the big fair.

Good Awnings Are Profitable As Investment

A good awning over a store front is a good investment in many ways considering the small amount of money involved.

While the principal reason for putting awnings on homes and other buildings is to keep out the sun's glare and for protection from blowing rains, an awning adds many times its worth to any building in attracting favorable attention.

From an advertising standpoint an awning presents the opportunity to display a firm's name, trade mark and popular brands of merchandise in sunshine or rain, and the more prominently the firm is located, the more valuable is its awning as an advertising medium.

The Atlanta Tent and Awning Company has had many years' experience in putting up store-front awnings as well as awnings for the home and other buildings, and never was it so well equipped with machinery, materials and a good organization as at the present. It is prepared to make the "right" awning for the customer.

This firm carries an exceptionally large stock of all the new and standard patterns of awning material and there is no delay about materials when it receives an order. The reliability of this old firm assures all who do business with it, that they will get service beyond the contract.

This firm has always been a leader in making large or small tents and the trade-mark "Style-Bilt" can be seen in the circus, gospel and construction tents from coast to coast. When emergency arises and any size or shape of a tent is needed in a hurry, an order can be filled in a few hours.

STATE'S ATTORNEY DENIES PARTNER RAN BUCKETSHOP

Chicago, September 8.—(AP)—The reported partnership of an assistant state's attorney, whose duty was to investigate Chicago's illicit brokerage houses, with an attorney who had several of the suspected firms as clients will come under the scrutiny of State's Attorney John A. Swanson tomorrow.

Raiders under Chief Investigator Warwick DeLoe, in their campaign, found a letter at one of the firms yesterday written on the stationery of Assistant State's Attorney Arthur Kealey and signed by James Kealey, said to have been Carlston's partner. The letter told Herbert C. Hall, said to have been a partner in the raided firm, that Kealey would "see what I can do about stalling that matter along."

Kealey told questioners today that the letter referred to a suit by a coal company against Hall, and denied that he had been in partnership with Carlston, explaining that he had merely taken over his business and might have used some of his stationery.

Carlston denied any irregularities with Kealey. "We were not exactly partners," he stated. "Well, you might say we were nominal partners from late fall until about February 1, when I was declared incompetent to stay on the prosecutor's staff. He was really working for me, but never in connection with anything from the state's attorney's office."

New Invention Will Heat Or Cool Homes as Desired

Thermozone is a new word meaning comfort and is appearing in Atlanta for the first time on a big sign at 555 Spring street, N. W., and that number is a former residence, converted into attractive offices of the R. N. Reed Company, which is demonstrating what a Thermozone is and can do.

A Thermozone is a heating or cooling plant and will by the pressing of a button furnish in the winter time whatever degree of heat is desired for six or seven rooms in a house, or in the summer time make the rooms comfortably cool.

This new home comfort is one of the simplest heating plants ever put into an American home and has no more about it to get out of order. There is no noise, no ashes to carry out, no soot to soil the curtains and draperies, and clean humidified air can be had in every room in the house.

Built Into Chimney.
The Thermozone is an attractive metal enclosed fireplace that is built into the chimney, the only visible portion being the fireplace. The visitor to the demonstration can see new heating plants in operation cannot see anything remarkable about seeing a nice warm glow in a fireplace, but when that same visitor goes into every room and large hall, on a cold day and finds the same even temperature in all the rooms where there are no fireplaces then the visitor wants to know how this remarkable result is accomplished.

The inventors of Thermozone had no thought of creating a device that would mystify visitors but one that would challenge their delight and admiration, and they took the old village blacksmith's forced draught idea when they want much heat and, like him, let their fire lie dormant when they don't want any heat. But while the theory is the same, the method of operation is different. Instead of the blacksmith's old hand-pumped bellows, the householders, when they want heat, just touch a button and an electric fan quickens a slow draft into a warm or hot fire and the warm air is sent to one or more other rooms as the home owner desires.

While the fan is the heart or dynamo of the Thermozone it cannot be seen or heard, for it is directly under the fire grate and is encased in the same metal covering as the fire grate itself. Therefore, it does not blow directly on the fire itself but forces the warm, hot or super-heated air that is drawn in from the outside and heated in hollow spaces back of the fireplace and this same hot air is forced through metal ducts or pipes to every room or hall where needed and then let up into each room through a register in the floor. This same register can be opened or closed at the will of those occupying the rooms.

Thermozone gives a family all the comforts and pleasures of seeing the warm glow of a fireplace in the living room and yet, no matter how cold it may be outside, the halls, bathroom and bedrooms are as warm as may be desired. When it comes time to retire the fire in the grate is checked so it will burn all night and in the early morning those who have to get up first can just touch a button by the side of their bed and in a very few minutes arise in a warm, comfortable room. The Thermozone can burn coal or coke.

Cooling Process.
When the days or nights are uncomfortably warm in the summer time the same fan under the fireplace is started, but without the fire being lighted, and fresh, cool air is forced through the pipes and registers, forcing the hot stale air out of the rooms. In other words one gets all the benefits of a large fan in any or all rooms in a house, yet only pays the electric bill for operating one fan. One does not hear the fan nor feel a direct draught. The cool air comes up through the little iron grate of a register in a remote corner in the room and can be turned on or off.

This splendid heating and cooling device would be interesting to everyone who wishes to make his home more comfortable. Mr. Reed has installed a demonstration sample in a house rather than in an office and the visitors there see the practical demonstration of how it can heat or cool every room in a large house. He extends a cordial invitation to all interested to drop in and see how simple it is to operate. Where it is not convenient to call in person a phone call at Hemlock 6228 or a written request will bring literature showing many handsome homes where Thermozones have been installed and the pleased letters from those who have them.

SEXUAL REFORM CONGRESS MEETS IN STAIN ENGLAND

London, September 8.—(AP)—The third international congress of the World League for Sexual Reform, which aims to bring sexual morality and legislation into harmony with modern biological and psychological thought instead of having it on a theological basis, opened a week of sessions in Westminster hall here tonight.

Dr. Magnus Hirschfeld, head of the Institute of Sexual Science in Berlin, delivered the presidential address on the development and scope of the science of sexuality.

Dr. Norman Haire, secretary of the congress, in his address of welcome said, "We English are so backward in discussion of sex problems and are so notorious for sexual prudery and hypocrisy that this first conference of its kind in England was embarked upon only with great hesitation."

Motor Company Reports Many Used Car Sales

Swinging into the third week of its mammoth used car sale, the Clyde Langford Motor Company is in a fair way of shattering all sales records.

This company for the past week has been offering what experts claim to be the finest array of used cars ever presented in a sale of this kind, which undoubtedly accounts for the unusual interest that has been manifested in the sale.

Several months ago the Clyde Langford company adopted a used car reconditioning and resale plan that was new and unique. This plan insures the purchaser of any of their used cars absolutely every cent that the investment represents, and puts back into service cars that will give many hundreds of miles of satisfactory transportation.

In the first place this company does not overbid or appraise used cars for more than they are worth, which method naturally means that the purchaser always can stand that additional allowance in his purchase price, lowering his appraised equity considerably and giving him transportation that is not representative of its true value.

"We have many more of these fine cars left," said Mr. Langford Saturday, "and if you are in the market, it will be to your advantage to come by and look over the stock that we are offering. In this lot you will find sedans, coupes, touring cars, roadsters, trucks, roadsters with slip-on bodies, and in fact a car for every need or purpose, and we wish the public to select their car with the utmost confidence, as every one is absolutely as represented, and our method of rebuilding and reconditioning insures against any misunderstanding as to its mechanical condition."

This company maintains and operates two separate places, one located at 231 Pryor street, S. W., and the other at the corner of Edgewood avenue and Piedmont. At both these places you will find a complete stock of used cars to select from.

VANDALS WRECK CATHOLIC TOMBS IN MASSACHUSETTS

Salem, Mass., September 8.—(AP)—Vandals destroyed more than 100 graves in St. Mary's Catholic cemetery here Saturday night, it was discovered today. Monuments were overturned, granite crosses broken off, statues mutilated, grass plots disfigured and street markers uprooted. The damage, which will require months to repair, was estimated as reaching into thousands of dollars.

Included were graves of priests and nuns and persons once prominent in civic affairs here. Three monuments on the family lot of ex-Mayor John F. Hurley were overturned and smashed.

Hundreds of persons with relatives buried in the cemetery gathered there today.

The effect of the crowd was to obliterate footprints, the only clue to the vandals, police said.

Ropes and heavy crowbars had been used by the miscreants.

Cotton Market Activity Marked for Short Week

New Orleans, September 8.—(AP)—The cotton market has been fairly active during the past week considering that the early portion of the period was interrupted by Labor Day holiday and the last portion has been more or less under the shadow of the approaching government report. Price fluctuations have been fairly wide including advances due to the drought in the west in the first days of the week and reactions later owing to the breaking of the drought by adequate rains which extended not only over most of the dry section of Texas but over Oklahoma as well.

On Tuesday December contracts touched 19.75 the high point of the week at which level values were about 32 points above the close of the preceding Saturday and 159 points above the low level reached on the decline in mid-August by Thursday on the strength of the rain reported in Texas helped by increased hedge selling December had dropped to 19.12 a reaction of 63 points.

This downward trend of prices was checked by a number of private crop reports giving greatly reduced estimates of the probable yield of the crop now beginning to move in volume. The average of these private estimates was in the neighborhood of 14,900,000 bales creating the impression among many that the impending government estimate will be about 15,000,000 bales.

This expectation of a considerably reduced government estimate which it checked the decline did not bring about much of a rally and the market

ket closed on Saturday with December back to 19.12 the low point of the week. The expectation of a lower estimate is based on the reports of serious deterioration of the Texas crop plus something more than the usual August deterioration in the rest of the cotton belt.

The movement of the crop to market during the past week assumed liberal proportions and the daily sales reported from southern markets indicate that the demand from spinners both domestic and foreign is broadening.

FIXED PRICES HIT
CUB DURING WEEK

New York, September 8.—(AP)—Price trends on the curb market were highly confusing during the past week, stocks of a number of utilities, utility investment companies and specialties surging forward 20 to more than 40 points, while a wide assortment of issues sagged moderately under pressure of realizing and liquidation.

The sharp break in prices on the stock exchange late in Thursday's session was reflected in only a moderate decline on the curb, a characteristic development, as curb stocks were not generally traded in large volume.

Electric Bond and Share was in good demand during most of the period, reaching new high ground and recording a net gain of more than 5 points, in sympathy with marked strength of American and Foreign Power and American Power and Light, in which it has large holdings, on the "big board."

American Superpower and United Gas Improvement, however, were inclined to sag. Standard Power and Light was a sensational performer, shooting up more than 40 points. Standard Gas and Electric was also a strong feature on the "big board," and Wall Street looks for an eventual merger of the two. Electric Power Associates, Northern States Power, and Central Public Service were also high.

Trading in the stock market was in a large volume during much of the week, particularly in the leading utilities, and the ticker occasionally fell nearly half an hour behind the trading.

Several of the investment trusts were in good demand, notably the National Investors issue. National Investors mounted more than 40 points. As this industry experienced only to another new high, and Third National made a wide gain. Reliance Management reached new high ground in response to the election of new directors, including Matthew Bruch, head of American International. Prudential Investors also reached new high ground.

Shenandoah and Blue Ridge were under pressure for a time. Shenandoah rallied, however, upon disclosure that its holdings, exclusive of Blue Ridge stock, had appreciated in value more than $17,000,000 since organization last July. Blue Ridge rallied after the settlement date, September 6.

A weak spot was Camden Fire Insurance, which broke from above 34 to below 21, a new low for the year. Oils were under moderate pressure, as result of apprehension of further gasoline price cutting. Mines displayed momentary strength on firming copper prices.

HEAT SLACKS RETAIL TRADE DURING WEEK

New York, September 8.—(AP)—With the Labor Day holiday and extremely hot weather last week, there was a notable slackening of activity in retail trade and many industries. There was no evident change in fundamental conditions, however, and prospects for fall trade were regarded optimistically in most quarters.

Retail trade during the week slowed up to about the level of activity of the like week of last year, but industry generally maintained operations at a substantially faster pace. While some of the heavy industries, notably steel, slowed up operations, prospects for fall trade were regarded optimistically in most quarters.

Several of the investment trusts were in good demand, notably the National Investors issue. National Investors mounted more than 40 points. As this industry experienced only to another new high, and Third National made a wide gain. Reliance Management reached new high ground in response to the election of new directors, including Matthew Bruch, head of American International. Prudential Investors also reached new high ground.

A weak spot was Camden Fire Insurance, which broke from above 34 to below 21, a new low for the year. Oils were under moderate pressure, as result of apprehension of further gasoline price cutting. Mines displayed momentary strength on firming copper prices.

The oil industry failed to improve. Consumption as reported for previous week continued to mount, and there was considerable nervousness lest competition force further cutting of gasoline prices. Although the California conservation law went into effect the first of the month, it now appears that it may take some time to put it into effect.

Wheat prices were under pressure for a time, but rallied with improvement in foreign buying. Corn was under pressure, and there were rumors of serious crop deterioration during the hot weather. The outlook in cotton remains somewhat uncertain with reports varying as to the damage done by the drought. The government report is due next week and is anxiously awaited. Livestock prices sagged a little.

Textiles were generally firm, and manufacturers active with good fall and winter clothing orders. There was little change in credit conditions. The weekly federal reserve condition statement disclosed that it was actively buying bills, but that local reserve credit outstanding in the form of brokers' loans. The New York stock exchange reported that member borrowings during August increased about $407,000,000 to a new record close to $8,000,000,000.

That tight credit has as yet had no serious repercussions in business was indicated by the August insolvency reports, showing the smallest number of failures, the lowest total of liabilities, for that month since 1925. The showing for the entire first eight months of the year was likewise the best since 1925.

Steel mills noted a further slackening in new buying, but prices held steady. Mill operations were around 90 per cent of capacity, as against 100 per cent during the peak month of last May. Wall street estimates that the United States Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage report, as of August 31, to be announced next week, will show a decrease of more than 200,000 tons. Definite indications as to the last quarter operations are not expected to appear before October. Investors mounted more than 40 points. As this industry experienced only

LACK OF INTEREST
HOLDS BONDS DULL

New York, September 8.—(AP)—The complete lack of interest in bonds, attributed to the public's partiality for stocks as well as to the high charges for money, caused prices for fixed obligations to soften again last week, which was one of the duller of the summer on the bond market.

A feature of the thin trading was the slack demand for convertibles. The share privilege debentures have been carrying the heavy bulk of the market's volume for many months and although they continued to do so during the past week, turnovers in the active issues slumped appreciably. American Telephone 4 1-2s, which have changed hands to the extent of about $5,000,000 par value in a single day and which have normally traded to the extent of $2,000,000, dropped below the $1,000,000 mark in several sessions. Other convertibles showed proportional slackening. Prices in this group suffered a setback of 1 to 7 points in the stock market decline of Thursday, but most of the losses had been recovered by the end of Saturday's short session.

The most interesting news item of the week was the announcement of the new treasury financing—a $500,000,000 issue of 4 7-8 per cent nine-month certificates of indebtedness. Although a 5 per cent rate would not have been surprising, it was recalled that the June 15 issue of certificates, bearing a 5 1-8 per cent rate, had promptly sold at a sizeable premium and that the forthcoming offering was tax exempt. In view of this feature, there was slight disposition to regard the 4 7-8 per cent figure as a forecast of easier money rates.

Bond dealers feel, however, that the cost of money, which has been 8 3-4 to 9 per cent for all maturities for some time, has less influence on the current market than has the public's utter indifference to the high yields offered by the coupon securities. Small investors make virtually no inquiry for bonds and the market is kept alive by institutions and corporations that either are not permitted to invest elsewhere or do not make a practice of lending money in the call market.

New bond offerings continue negligible, a fact that enables the market to maintain a sound technical position. The volume of bonds on dealers' shelves is reported to be relatively small, another favorable factor. However, the long-delayed improvement seems to have been rather definitely postponed, although many observers believe that a pronounced slump in stocks would send the public back to bonds.

Issues floated during the week totaled $8,976,000 compared with $6,032,000 in the previous week and $54,450,000 in the corresponding period of 1925. All but $1,000,000 of the new offerings was in municipals, the principal borrower in that group being the city of Milwaukee.

SOUP BONES POPULAR
AT BAINBRIDGE

Bainbridge, Ga., September 8.—(Special).—There is a dearth of native beef at all of the markets here, and according to proprietors of the various places citizens will be forced to buy the high priced western meats if they are to have beef, because not only is beef scarce but those farmers who have livestock for sale are almost prohibitive in their prices.

That housewives are resorting to much soup for the first full days is evident in the scarcity of soup bones, for on Saturday morning only one pound of meat was able to accommodate customers in the community.

The Business Barometer
BY THEODORE H. PRICE.
Editor, Commerce and Finance, New York.

To glimpse the changes that the inscrutable future has in store for the must be the purpose of all the reports of business that are printed. Were it otherwise their compilation and publication would be a flimsy waste of time and money. This flimsy waste of time and money is a conspicuous just now when everybody seems to think that our present "planned prosperity" will last forever.

Of course the abrogation of many fundamental economic laws is implied in this assumption of an uninterrupted prosperity, but it is a theory that is as flimsy as the paper on which it is written. In America at least it now seems to be taken for granted that the machinery of commerce, finance, industry and politics will continue to move smoothly as long as the present generation of optimists are in charge of it.

There are, however, a few "old family physicians" still left who insist that the hectic flush, excited pulse and rapid breathing that are now so general indicate a weak condition that will soon compel the patient to take a rest and may put him to bed.

Wider View Taken. A view somewhat apparent last week when the banking news both here and abroad laid fresh emphasis upon the widespread scarcity of credit that is becoming the most conspicuous feature of the situation. One influence was the fear that the Bank of England would raise its rate to 7 per cent. The rise was not made last week, and the treasury was somewhat relieved. But most students of the situation think the step is merely deferred, for it may be taken for granted that the willingness of American banks to lend at 9 per cent for call money with which to carry stocks will ultimately draw most of the world's unemployed capital to this country, and intensify the shortage elsewhere.

This is one of the fundamentals of even more concern is the apparently unending growth of brokers' loans in this country. During August borrowing by all cities throughout the New York Stock Exchange showed the unprecedented increase of $407,825,000 to a new high total of $7,818,619,000. The loans to brokers here, which are confined to such things as the purchase of securities, the purchase of bonds, and the purchase of stocks, have increased to such an extent that the total amount of the loans is now more than $400,000,000 during the past three weeks.

At a time when the world is in need of finance crop-moving and the seasonal expansion in distributive trade which begins after Labor Day it is idle to think that the securities market can continue to gulp such huge weekly bites without straining the reserve banks, and the figures suggest that some liquidation is presently inescapable.

Hence the stock market has some violent sinking spells last week, brokers are commencing to issue letters calling attention to the fact that the securities issues that have declined since the first of January number those that have advanced, and the feeling that pervades speculative circles is rather more cautious than it was.

In the commodity markets there have not been many changes that are important in their significance. In cotton there has been a thermometer and a barometer market. August has been a month of extremes. It seems to have exhausted itself, and prices yielded when scattered rains were reported. The inventor of an infallible instrument for forecasting the weather throughout the cotton belt could make an enormous fortune if he could.

In so far as this country is concerned, the outlook seems entirely satisfactory. Legitimate trade is good. If the stock market declines there may be some slack to take up, but this is about the only possibility that suggests the need of caution, and there seems to be every reason for expecting a good business next winter if we get through the crop-moving period without having to pay painfully high rates for credit.

The experience of the Jews in America has convinced many small nations that a big brother is a good thing to have in the family, and that if this big brother has big fists and big muscles is not thereby rendered less desirable.

The row between China and Russia that threatened seems to have evaporated at least in so far as the news dispatches are concerned. An engagement to arbitrate has been formally announced, and most advisers from China seem to indicate that things are getting back to normal there. The 400,000,000 people who inhabit China are the most industrious group in the world, individually considered, and it is a great pity that they cannot be centralized, if such a word is permissible.

MARKET IN STEEL
GENERALLY BETTER

New York, September 8.—(AP)—While there appears to be a falling off in the production of steel ingots so far this month, the demand in other quarters of the market is steady to higher. Little appreciable change was noted outside of a holiday lull. Autumn rail demand reported already setting in, with structural steel buying stronger. Automobile and railway equipment are the principal uncertainties. Demand for steel sheets generally was reported steady. The steel market on the whole was better than last week. Record pig iron production for August, but demand is rather dull at unchanged prices.

Following the most active copper buying since early spring, domestic demand tapered off to a moderate level the week, although still in fair volume. Export demand, however, continued at a comparatively heavy rate, with some producers still offering electrolytic at 18 cents delivered in the Connecticut valley. There was said to be apprehension of an immediate advance and fabricators who had been rushing to fill accumulated requirements were said to be waiting for the August statistics next week. Some producers who had withdrawn from the market early in the week were still holding for 18 1-2 cents.

Tin market quiet with prices easier due to lack of support. Sharp advances in lead prices due to increased demand for a shipping off of business late in the week. Zinc was quiet with some shading reported on lots, but holders for the most part were firm.

Easier sentiment, prices forecast with good shipments and comparatively little demand. Courthouse bonds sold at waycross.

Waycross, Ga., September 8.—(Special).—The commissioners of Brantley county have sold the $35,000 of bonds for the erection of a court house to J. C. Dale for par value.

British Plan New Effort To Break Speed Record By Seaplane on Tuesday

Spectacular Test To Be Made Over Three Kilometer Course at Calshot, England.

Calshot, England, September 8.—(AP)—British seaplanes which set a new world record for speed yesterday in the Schneider cup races will make a fresh assault on all speed records Tuesday.

Flying Officer R. L. R. Atcherley, although he was disqualified in the race yesterday, attained a speed of 332.49 miles an hour, well over the previous record of 318.43 set by Major Mario De Bernardi last year. Old marks must be exceeded by 5 miles an hour to be allowed as a new speed record.

The attempt on Tuesday will be over a three-kilometer (slightly less than two miles) course. Such tests are spectacular and thrilling. The pilot is allowed to dive from a height of 1,000 feet before flying over the measured course, and in this dive develops a speed of nearly 400 miles an hour.

Flight Lieutenant Kinkaid was killed in trying to win the record for this distance for England. Squadron Leader A. H. Orlebar, who did not race yesterday, was expected to make the first attempt with the same seaplane in which he won the race. The test is satisfactory, will also have a try at the record.

The Italian competitors, one of whom took second place yesterday, supervised packing of their planes to day in preparation for probable departure tomorrow night.

JEFFERSON D. YOUNG PASSES IN LEESBURG

Father of Atlanta Woman Was Prominent in Florida Land Development.

Jefferson D. Young, 67, a former Atlantan and the father of Mrs. Edna Young, of this city, died suddenly Sunday at his home in Leesburg, Fla. He had been suffering from a recurrent heart trouble for some time.

The body will be taken to Gadsden, Ala., for funeral services and burial there. The funeral will be held on Tuesday, but the hour and place had not been set Sunday night.

Mr. Young was born in Gadsden in 1862, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Young. He was educated in Alabama and was in business there as a young man, coming here in 1892. He maintained his residence here until 1898 when he removed to Washington.

In 1900 he became interested in water power and land development in the vicinity of Leesburg and since that time continued in the work. He was largely responsible for the carrying out of several large projects in water power developing and the draining and reclaiming of valuable swamp lands. During his work in Florida he lived for the greater part of the time in Leesburg but also maintained a home in Washington.

In addition to his daughter, Mr. Young is survived by his widow.

C. ARMAND CARROLL IS CALLED BY DEATH

Charles Armand Carroll, prominent Atlanta advertising man and widely known as an author and poet, died unexpectedly at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at his home, 300 The Prado. He was 42 years old.

Mr. Carroll had been ill only a few days and not until a few hours before his death did his condition become alarming. So confident was he of the mild nature of the attack that he arose as usual Sunday morning. Early in the afternoon, however, his condition took a sudden turn for the worse and he died a few hours later.

Mr. Carroll, in addition to his advertising and literary activities, was widely known in musical circles, as he was the author of a number of short stories and several volumes of poetry. In 1916 when the 300th anniversary of Shakespeare's death was commemorated, Mr. Carroll wrote and directed a pageant on Shakespeare, his life and work. The pageant was produced in Grant Park and witnessed by thousands of Atlantans.

Mr. Carroll is survived by his widow; one son, A. F. Carroll, and his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Carroll. The body will be sent to America, his former home, by the Patterson company this morning for burial.
